Sharp, 1997 Offers a whole system view of public policy crime and criminal justice with original articles on various topics ranging from a general discussion of public policy the causes of crime and the components of the criminal justice system to the implications for policy

Crime and Public Policy James Q. Wilson, Joan Petersilia, 2010-12-20 Crime in the United States has fluctuated considerably over the past thirty years as have the policy approaches to deal with it During this time criminologists and other scholars have helped to shed light on the role of incarceration prevention drugs guns policing and numerous other aspects to crime control Yet the latest research is rarely heard in public discussions and is often missing from the desks of policymakers This book accessibly summarizes the latest scientific information on the causes of crime and evidence about what does and does not work to control it Thoroughly revised and updated this new version of Crime and Public Policy will include twenty chapters and five new substantial entries As with previous editions each essay reviews the existing literature discusses the methodological rigor of the studies identifies what policies and programs the studies suggest and then points to policies now implemented that fail to reflect the evidence The chapters cover the principle institutions of the criminal justice system juvenile justice police prisons probation and parole sentencing how broader aspects of social life inhibit or encourage crime biology schools families communities and topics currently generating a great deal of attention criminal activities of gangs sex offenders prisoner reentry changing crime rates With contributions from trusted leading scholars Crime and Public Policy offers the most comprehensive and balanced guide to how the latest and best social science research informs the understanding of crime and its control for policymakers community leaders and students of crime and criminal justice

Criminal Justice James P. Levine, Michael C. Musheno, Dennis J. Palumbo, 1980 Concentrating on the conflicts of interest among criminal justice system components between the public and its perception of crime and among policymakers this analysis promotes new public policy directions First an analysis of crime criminals and the criminal justice system provides a perspective to help distinguish myths about ideal system operation from the reality of its functioning This conceptual framework focuses on the conflicting priorities of private motives and public interests perceptions and misconceptions of crime theories about what constitutes a criminal and the implementation of criminal justice policy from these perceptions The workings of each of the major components of the criminal justice system are then examined with attention to the real roles and interests of the police lawyers attorneys and the defense counsel the courts and corrections Interests and goals that are prime points of conflict between these components are detailed as is the impact of these conflicts on law enforcement and crime Third four policies currently being used in the U S to deal with crime are explored deterrence rehabilitation decriminalization and diversion Attempts are made to fit each policy into its historical beginning and to highlight reasons for its emerging as an important policy each policy's assumptions about the nature of crime and the nature of criminals are discussed Finally processes for assessing policies and their impact on society and crime are presented the processes are evaluated for advantages and pitfalls Evaluations of research designed to assess policies then lead to proposals for improving criminal justice policy

Correctional officers lack consensus on an agreed upon definition of what constitutes institutional gang practices to enforce zero tolerance policies for gang activity The lack of consistency in enforcing such a policy has serious consequences for the physical safety of both inmates and officers in correctional environments However little research exists about their decision making processes to enforce a zero tolerance policy for gang activity A social construction framework guided this study The research question explored the correctional officers decision making processes to identify gang practices and enforce the zero tolerance policy for gang activity Using a phenomenological design data analysis involved a an analysis of the lived experiences of six purposefully selected officers in enforcing the policy and b a differentiation between their awareness of group threats and nonthreats The semi structured interview guide consisted of open ended questions to identify cognitive biases in their decision making that revealed use of confirmation bias cognitive dissonance and groupthink An interactive and inductive cycle with member checking revealed that officers conformed to institutional socialization i e they internalized their center s traditional norms and practices In turn this systemic process affected their personal judgments related to recognizing agreeing to and enforcing the zero tolerance policy Recommended was the creation of an awareness program to guide correctional personnel in identifying personal biases and making choices that are more rational in their decision making The social change implications of this study highlights the importance of understanding the complexity of decision making controlling the effects of personal biases and designing effective ways to build consensus among correctional staff

Handbook of Policing Tim Newburn,2012-08-21 This new edition of the Handbook of Policing updates and expands the highly successful first edition and now includes a completely new chapter on policing and forensics It provides a comprehensive but highly readable overview of policing in the UK and is an essential reference point combining the expertise of leading academic experts on policing and policing practitioners themselves Sex, Sexuality, Law, and (In)justice Henry F.
