Scott, 2015-01-21 Attracted to the rich ceremonial life and unique architecture of the New Mexico pueblos many early twentieth century artists depicted Pueblo peoples places and culture in paintings These artists encounters with Pueblo Indians fostered their awareness of Native political struggles and led them to join with Pueblo communities to champion Indian rights In this book art historian Sascha T Scott examines the ways in which non Pueblo and Pueblo artists advocated for American Indian cultures by confronting some of the cultural legal and political issues of the day Scott closely examines the work of five diverse artists exploring how their art was shaped by and helped to shape Indian politics She places the art within the context of the interwar period 1915 30 a time when federal Indian policy shifted away from forced assimilation and toward preservation of Native cultures Through careful analysis of paintings by Ernest L Blumenschein John Sloan Marsden Hartley and Awa Tsireh Alfonso Roybal Scott shows how their depictions of thriving Pueblo life and rituals promoted cultural preservation and challenged the pervasive romanticizing theme of the vanishing Indian Georgia O Keeffe s images of Pueblo dances which connect abstraction with lived experience testify to the legacy of these political and aesthetic transformations Scott makes use of anthropology history and indigenous studies in her art historical narrative She is one of the first scholars to address varied responses to issues of cultural preservation by aesthetically and culturally diverse artists including Pueblo painters Beautifully designed this book features nearly sixty artworks reproduced in full color Portrait of Route 66 T. Lindsay Baker, 2016-09-20 By the time Route 66 received its official numerical designation in 1926 picture postcards had become popular travel souvenirs At the time these postcards with colorful images served as advertisements for roadside businesses While cherished by collectors these postcard depictions do not always reflect reality They often present instead a view enhanced for promotional purposes Portrait of Route 66 lets us see for the first time the actual photographs from which the postcards were made and in describing how the production process worked introduces us to an extraordinary archival collection adding new history to this iconic road The Curt Teich Postcard Archives held at the Lake County Discovery Museum in Wauconda Illinois contains one of the nation's largest collections of Route 66 images including thousands of job files for postcards produced by Curt Teich and Company of Chicago T Lindsay Baker combed these files to choose the best examples of postcards and their accompanying photographs not only to reflect well known sites along the route but also to demonstrate the relationships between photographs and their resulting postcards The photographs show the reality of the locations that customers sometimes wanted improved for aesthetic purposes in creating the postcards Such alterations included removing utility poles or automobile traffic and rendering overcast skies partly cloudy This book will interest historians of art and design as well as the worldwide audiences of Route 66 aficionados and postcard collectors For its mining of an invaluable and little known photographic archive and depiction of high quality photographs that have not been seen before Portrait of Route 66 will be irresistible to all who are interested in American history and culture Fourteen Families in Pueblo Pottery Rick Dillingham, 1994 In 1974 Seven Families in Pueblo Pottery was published to accompany an exhibit at the Maxwell Museum of Anthropology twenty years later there are some 80 000 copies in print Like Seven Families this updated and greatly enlarged version by Rick Dillingham who curated the original exhibition includes portraits of the potters color photographs of their work and a statement by each potter about the work of his or her family In addition to the original seven the Chino and Lewis families Acoma Pueblo the Nampeyos Hopi the Guteirrez and Tafoya families Santa Clara and the Gonzales and Martinez families San Ildefonso the author had added the Chapellas and the Navasies Hopi Tewa the Chavarrias Santa Clara the Herrera family Choti the Medina family Zia and the Tenorio Pacheco and the Melchor families Santo Domingo Because the craft of pottery is handed down from generation to generation among the Pueblo Indians this extended look at multiple generations provides a fascinating and personal glimpse into how the craft has developed Also evident are the differences of opinion among the artists about the future of Pueblo pottery and the importance of following tradition A new generation of potters has come of age since the publication of Seven Families The addition of their talents along with an ever growing interest in Native American pottery make this book a welcome addition to the literature on the Southwest Art for an Undivided Earth Jessica L. Horton, 2017-05-18 In Art for an Undivided Earth Jessica L Horton reveals how the spatial philosophies underlying the American Indian Movement AIM were refigured by a generation of artists searching for new places to stand Upending the assumption that Jimmie Durham James Luna Kay WalkingStick Robert Houle and others were primarily concerned with identity politics she joins them in remapping the coordinates of a widely shared yet deeply contested modernity that is defined in great part by the colonization of the Americas She follows their installations performances and paintings across the ocean and back in time as they retrace the paths of Native diplomats scholars performers and objects in Europe after 1492 Along the way Horton intervenes in a range of theories about global modernisms Native American sovereignty racial difference archival logic artistic itinerancy and new materialisms Writing in creative dialogue with contemporary artists she builds a picture of a spatially temporally and materially interconnected world an undivided earth

Pueblo Indian Painting J. J. Brody, 1997 A new tradition of Pueblo fine art painting arose in the first three decades of the twentieth century born out of a dynamic encounter between the Pueblo and Euro American communities in and around Santa Fe New Mexico Traditional Pueblo art supported community values and was integral to the ritual and daily life of the people but the painting style that developed after 1900 was novel in every way involving new subject matter new media and a new audience of Euro American artists intellectuals and art patrons The young Pueblo artists who created the new genre merged their Pueblo traditions with the aesthetic principles of Euro American modernism to create an entirely new art form emblematic of the changing relationship between the two cultures In Pueblo Indian Painting art historian J J Brody presents the first complete history of this vibrant art Based on the extensive Pueblo painting collections of the School of American Research and richly illustrated in color and black and white the book examines the achievements of seven artists who were key to the evolution of Pueblo painting Fred Kabotie and Otis Polelonema of Hopi Velino Shije Herrera of Zia and Crescencio Martinez Ta E Tonita Pe a Quah Ah Alfonso Roybal Awa Tsireh and Abel Sanchez Oqwa Pi of San Ildefonso Brody also explores the role played by the patrons who supported and promoted the Pueblo artists work individuals such as Mary Austin Alice Corbin Henderson Edgar Lee Hewett Oliver La Farge Mabel Dodge Luhan John Sloan and Amelia Elizabeth White Pueblo Indian Painting places this important but under appreciated fine art tradition squarely within the contexts of Pueblo culture and Euro American modernism bringing long overdue recognition to the tradition and its preeminent practitioners as a vital part of American art history
