Industrial Tree Plantations and the Land Rush in China Yunan Xu, 2020-03-12 This book analyses the political and economic causes mechanisms and impacts of the industrial tree plantation boom in China In the past two decades the industrial tree plantation sector has been expanding rapidly in China especially in Guangxi Province Based on extensive primary data this book concentrates on the political economy of the sector s expansion with a focus on the recent and dramatic agrarian transformation involving the land labour nexus the impact on villagers livelihoods the role of the state and political reactions from below The book questions the stereotypical portrayal of local communities as the excluded villager Instead it demonstrates that this is a much more complex issue with varying levels of passive and active forms of inclusion and exclusion within local communities While most literature focuses on crop booms for food and biofuel production the industrial plantation sector has largely been overlooked despite it being one of the biggest sectors in the current rush for land Filling this lacuna this book also reveals that while China has traditionally been painted as a major land grabber and consumer of crop booms it is also a destination of foreign investment In doing so the book highlights how large scale foreign land deals can also take place in traditional grabber countries like China which feeds into the wider debates about global land politics and resource grabbing This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of land grabbing rural development and agrarian transformations as well as Chinese development

Sustainable Plantation Forestry Herman Hidayat, 2018-03-15 This book discusses sustainable forest management from the perspectives of sociology anthropology politics economics and policy It examines the roles of governments private sectors NGOs academics and local communities in implementing sustainable plantation forestry which aims to supply timber for the forestry industry while at the same time reducing global warming The book also explores the debates on sustainable forest management practices in several countries and examines the effects of political ecology on plantation forestry as well as the impact of climate change and conservation programs By analyzing a number of interrelated issues it offers a valuable resource for all governments private companies practitioners NGOs academics and students studying forest management and political ecology from a social sciences perspective

Green Growth Gareth Dale,Manu V. Mathai,Jose A. Puppim de Oliveira,2016-02-15 The discourse of green growth has recently gained ground in environmental governance deliberations and policy proposals It is presented as a fresh and innovative agenda centred on the deployment of engineering sophistication managerial acumen and market mechanisms to redress the environmental and social derelictions of the existing development model But the green growth project is deeply inadequate whether assessed against criteria of social justice or the achievement of sustainable economic life upon a materially finite planet This volume outlines three main lines of critique First it traces the development of the green growth discourse qua ideology It asks what explains modern society's investment in it why has it emerged as a master concept in the contemporary conjuncture and what social forces does it serve Second it unpicks and explains the contradictions within a series of prominent green growth projects Finally it weighs up the merits and demerits of alternative strategies and policies asking the vital question if not green growth then what

International Management and International Relations Ana Guedes,Alex Faria,2010-04-23 Over the last few decades the field of management enlarged its boundaries especially in international terms in a very rapid fashion mainly because of the arrival of the so called era of globalization Many renowned scholars have criticized the universal approach given to management in the United States and its subsequent automatic conversion into international management but their arguments too can fall into the trap of universalism at times This book has a more specific concern to challenge the conversion of management into international management from a Latin American perspective This challenge might be taken as a first step toward the construction of a Latin American perspective in International Management and a potential contribution to the development of this field in other parts of the world Drawing upon such critical standpoint several authors in the book converge upon the idea that researchers practitioners and authorities in Latin America should challenge the US dominance in International Management and foster interdisciplinary developments within International Relations The critical perspective provided in this book challenges the US's narrow viewpoint on management as it clearly does not fit the governance features of international management in Latin America So far we have not observed the constitution of sub areas such as international management of international organizations international management of transnational institutions international management of public private networks international management of public companies and international public administration or international public management all of which would be extremely important in Latin America

Tree Plantation Extractivism in Chile Alejandro Mora-Motta,2024-03-29 This book examines how extractivism transforms territories and affects the well being of rural people drawing on in depth fieldwork conducted on tree plantations in Chile The book argues that pine and eucalyptus monoculture plantations in southern Chile are a form of extractivism representing a mode of nature appropriation that captures large amounts of natural resources to produce wooden based raw materials with little processing and an export oriented focus The book discusses the nexus of extractivism territorial transformations well being and emerging resistances using a participatory action research methodological approach in the Region of Los R os southern Chile The findings show how the configuration of an extractivist logging enclave generated a substantial and irrevocable reordering of human nature relations resulting in the territorial and ontological occupation of rural places that disrupted the fundamental human needs of peasants and indigenous people The book maintains that Chile s green growth development approach does not challenge the consolidated tree plantation enclave controlled by large multinationals Instead green growth legitimises the extractivist logic The book draws parallels with other countries and regions to contribute to wider debates surrounding these topics This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of the extractive industries development studies political ecology and natural resource governance

Life Out of Bounds Chris Bright,1998 Bright a research assistant at the environmental educational non profit organization Worldwatch Institute describes and evaluates the spread of alien or exotic organisms that are destroying ecosystems around the world Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR Financing Pulp Mills: An Appraisal of Risk Assessment and Safeguard Procedures Machteld Spek,2005-01-01 This study analyses the risk assessment and socio environmental safeguard procedures associated with the financing of pulp mill projects The type and cost of the fibre source is clearly key to the economic competitiveness of any pulp mill Nevertheless investment institutions often carry out only limited assessment of the fibre source of the proposed mill Although a growing number of financial institutions have adopted policies to employ social and environmental safeguard screening for investments in developing countries and transitioning economies the scope of such screenings is in fact quite limited and they are often implemented ineffectively Provided by publisher

Globalization, Environmental Change, and Social History Peter Boomgaard,Marjolein 't Hart,2011-02-24 Throughout all ages the activities of mankind have weighed heavily upon the environment In turn changes in that environment have favoured the rise of certain social groups and limited the actions of others Despite this environmental history has remained a blind spot for most social and economic historians This is to be regretted as the various and unequal effects of environmental change often explain the strengths and weaknesses of certain social groups irrespective of their being defined along the lines of class gender and ethnicity This volume brings together the expertise of social and environmental historians in an effort to assess the extent to which transnational agents changed socioecological space as a consequence of globalization since the Late Middle Ages The Oxford Handbook of Environmental History Andrew C. Isenberg,2017 The Oxford Handbook of Environmental History draws on a wealth of new scholarship to offer diverse perspectives on the state of the field The Palgrave Dictionary of Transnational History A. Iriye,P. Saunier,2016-04-30 Written and edited by many of the world s foremost scholars of transnational history this Dictionary challenges readers to look at the contemporary world in a new light Contains over 400 entries on transnational subjects such as food migration and religion as well as traditional topics such as nationalism and war

Forestry in a Global Context Roger Sands, 2013-11-12 From the time of hunter gatherers to the present day forests have played a vital role in the development of humanity and society This broad introductory textbook sets world forestry in a social environmental historical and economic context The development of forests grassland and humans is described from the Devonian through to the Age of Agriculture covering the factors determining the distribution of forests the classification of forest types the value and benefits of the forest and the products of the forest and their associated trade The book also explores issues such as sustainable forest management current patterns of deforestation and reforestation and future challenges facing our forests Fully updated throughout and with new contributions from international experts this second edition includes new chapters on climate change and international forest policy and expanded coverage of forest products and bioenergy production

Contentious Agency and Natural Resource Politics Markus Kröger, 2013-11-26 The looming depletion of non renewable resources has increased the global land grab in the past decade So far however the question of how and when people can influence economic outcomes has received little attention in the study of social movements Based on in depth ethnographic field research since 2003 in the industrial forestry expansion frontiers in Brazil and elsewhere in the global South this book presents a novel theory to explain how the interaction between resistance companies and the state determines investment outcomes The promotion of contentious agency by organizing and politicizing campaigning protesting networking and engaging in state and corporate remediated politics whilst maintaining autonomy is central to explaining how impacted people influence resource flows and block or slow projects they deem harmful to their livelihoods and the environment The conflicts between globalizing paper and pulp corporations and the landless peasants indigenous communities and other parties with alternative projects for the planet s future are studied to illustrate how a great transformation can be built upon progressive counter movements This systematic comparison of several cases illustrates the broader principles and problems endemic to the global political economy Contentious Agency and Natural Resource Politics will be of strong interest to students and scholars of international relations international political economy environmental studies environmental politics sociology and social movement studies

People and Forest-Policy and Local Reality in Southeast Asia, the Russian Far East, and Japan M. Inoue, H. Isozaki, 2013-11-30 This book is a compilation of the results of strategic policy research carried out by the Forest Conservation Project of the Institute for Global Environmental Strategies IGES between 1998 and 2002 The project s main purpose is to shed light on measures to conserve biodiversity and use forests sustainably particularly in the Asia Pacific region Project work was conducted by academics non governmental organizations and governmental officials in selected countries in the region and covered everything from the local reality at the village level to forest policy at the national and global levels Based on a structural analysis of issues concerning forest loss and degradation the project focused on the participation of local people in sustainable forest management The book presents a framework for sustainable forest management in the Asia Pacific region analyzes forest policy and legislation in terms of local participation sheds light on the local reality in forest use and management proposes methodologies and concepts for sustainable forest management through local participation Audience The book offers a helpful framework for forest conservation as well as key concepts and measures that will be useful for policy makers non governmental organizations and academics alike

Industrial Uses of Biomass Energy Frank Rosillo-Calle,Sergio V. Bajay,Harry Rothman,2000-09-13 Industrial Uses of Biomass Energy demonstrates that energy rich vegetation biomass is a key renewable energy resource for the future Brazil uniquely has a recent history of large scale biomass industrial uses that makes it a specially important test bed both for the development of biomass technology and its utilisation and for understanding how this is shaped by political and socio economic forces The book analyses the cause for this and the alternatives It is argued that Brazil s experience with the development for industrial biomass use provides wider lessons and insights in the context of the international movement for sustainable economic development This book is an interdisciplinary multi author work based upon a recently completed international study by Brazilian and British experts and will prove a valuable reference to all those working in this field

No stone unturned.

Building blocks of environmentalist power versus transnational industrial forestry in Costa Rica Heleen van den Hombergh,2004 The Oxford Handbook of Land Politics Saturnino M. Borrás,Jennifer C. Franco,2025-08-29 The Oxford Handbook of Land Politics brings together key theoretical perspectives on the politics of land as well as strategic thematic studies on land and social life namely food politics climate change labor regimes nation states and citizenship and geopolitics The contributors to this volume address the basic but complex questions of who gets to have access to land why how what kind of land and how much where and for how long for what purposes and with what implications as to who wins and who loses These questions are grounded in social relations that are in turn rooted in class and other social group formations that are enacted within the inseparable spheres of state and society Fundamental to this collection is its treatment of land in the context of production and social reproduction where social reproduction is interpreted in a broad sense to include socio ecological socio cultural and socio political reproduction The definition of land used in this Handbook encompasses soil farmland grazing land home lots landscapes socio agroecological zones territory and homeland Individually and together the chapters show that making sense of the dynamics of global social life requires a fundamental understanding of the politics of land and a grasp of land politics requires a comprehension of broader social life For instance land politics plays a key role in causing climate change and at the same time it is centrally located in the competing solutions to the climate crisis Understanding climate change politics necessarily requires a deep grasp of land politics All contributing authors are critical of capitalism and of theories that justify and celebrate it While most contributions focus on dynamics of social change in and in relation to the rural world these are cast in the context of rural urban agriculture industry national global continuums The Handbook is organically embedded in several disciplines and fields of study political economy political ecology sociology political science economics anthropology legal studies development studies anthropology environmental studies and social movements It is a critical resource for scholars and students who seek to understand the complex interactions between these various disciplines and land politics
