Punishment Under Prebure The Probation Service In The Inner City

Maurice Vanstone, Philip Priestley

Punishment Under Prebure The Probation Service In The Inner City:

Punishment Under Pressure Bob Broad, 1991 Arguing that while certain aspects of the probation service community developments are suitable for addressing social problems in inner city areas progressive probation practices retain innovatory status The book examines the construction and presentation of Social Inquiry Reports anti racism group work probation clients and unemployment the disproportionate number of black people in custodial institutions and inter agency work

The Golden Age of Probation Roger Statham, 2014-09-24 The Golden Age of Probation is the first book on probation by those practitioners who became its leaders A comprehensive account exploring culture values and tensions It looks at the dynamics of probation supervision and political dimensions including the shift to a market driven form of public service A lively and challenging collection of writings by those at the very heart of the Probation Service for 50 years Complete with descriptions of life at all levels of what has been described as the jewel in the crown of criminal justice Moral and other challenges are presented alongside those of standing up to government Ministers whose aspirations for political immortality have led to profound tensions The book describes how tough talk and market strategies have undermined 100 years of devoted public service and ideas about how best to help change the lives of some of the most marginalised people in society Equality race and social deprivation are amongst the issues explored as the ethos of probation and its deeply rooted values are laid bare in a book that deals with highs and lows hazards innovation hopes aims and the international influence of an organization whose original mission not always popular was to advise assist and befriend those otherwise heading for prison and a life of crime Colourful and highly readable The Golden Age of Probation takes the reader on a journey through England and Wales exposing social disadvantage unrest and increasingly London centric policies It records first hand what life was like for those at the sharp end during an era of extensive progress development and change From the book The price of the semi privatised probation estate is that probation has lost its umbilical cord with the courts the police the prosecution service and our partners in local authorities It will be difficult for the courts in particular to understand the transforming rehabilitation agenda when services for low and medium risk offenders will be carried out by an origami of commissioned enterprises whose experience for the most part is in the private sector of running prisons mostly in the USA and whose staff may not necessarily have the qualifications to properly assess and supervise known offenders John Harding CBE Chapter 10 Although the restructure made the service vulnerable to later changes through the 2000 Act it did achieve better consistency reduced costs in due course more women at the top and a national programme of assessment and interventions that was internationally ground breaking The mistake in my view was to abandon this direction later that decade combine with the Prison Service under the banner of offender management and sacrifice the national probation influence that had been gained Because of the nature of the caseload with most offenders on community orders we have always had more joint work with police and local authorities than with the Prison Service Personalities and some bad judgements however got in the way

Mary Anne McFarlane Chapter 14 For the last three decades probation just like health and education has been caught up in the dynamics and mechanisms of creating pseudo pseudo markets to deliver public services The underlying philosophy might appear to be simply to get the cost of these things off the government s balance sheet but the structures created to do this are not transparent enough for a real assessment to be made of the true financial costs At the same time organizational targets and protocols have helped stifle initiative and even the capacity to care Roger Statham Chapter 18 Britain's Inner Cities Monica Charlot,1994 Rehabilitating and Resettling Offenders in the Community Anthony H. Goodman,2012-05-25 Rehabilitating and Resettling Offenders in the Community is a significant examination of the historical development of work with offenders and their treatment by the state and society It offers unique perspectives and a wealth of information drawn from numerous interviews with probation staff Highlights how the work of probation staff has changed over time and the reasons behind these changes Includes discourse with probation staff carried out over many years for a comprehensive insiders view of the situation Focuses on contemporary issues including the changes brought in by the Conservative Liberal Democrat coalition Written by a leading academic with extensive experience in the probation service

Probation and Politics Maurice Vanstone,Philip Priestley,2016-12-30 This book is a collection of essays by a unique group of authors about the political destruction of the probation service in England and Wales All of them are probation officers turned academics with a collective scholarly output that is both prodigious and distinguished They address the history of probation its underlying values and working methods and the way it has been systematically dismantled by successive political administrations The book offers essential reading for those interested in broadening their understanding of the probation service and its vital role in rehabilitation In addition it makes a compelling case for the reinstatement of an evidence based probation service as the primary criminal justice agency concerned with helping people who come before the courts to become contributing citizens A lively and engrossing read it is destined to be invaluable to policy makers social science theorists and commentators as well as scholars of criminology and the justice system and all those who work in it

Respectfully And Proper Offender Treatment Ethical Issues in Social Work Richard Hugman, David Smith, 2002-09-09

It has always been recognised that the practice of social work raises ethical questions and dilemmas. Recently however traditional ways of addressing ethical issues in social work have come to seem inadequate as a result of developments both in philosophy and in social work theory and practice. This collection of thought provoking essays explores the ethics of social work practice on the light of these changes. Ethical Issues in Social Work provides up to date critical analyses of the ethical implications of new legislation in community care and criminal justice and of trends in social work thought and policy such as managerialism, user empowerment, feminism and anti oppressive practice. This study provides important and stimulating reading for social work students and their teachers and for all practitioners and managers who are concerned about the ethical dimensions of their work.

What Matters in Probation George Mair, 2013-01-11 The What Works initiative is having a profound impact on the work of the National Probation Service and much has been invested in new accredited programmes both in terms of the numbers of offenders planned to complete these programmes and their anticipated impact upon offending. Yet there has been little scholarly or professional discussion of the nature and risks of the new paradigm; it is important that it is subjected to critical debate and scrutiny. This book aims to provide a critical overview of What Works providing a wider set of perspectives on a project which is vital for the future of the National Probation Service. The Addicted Offender J. Rumgay, 2000-10-10 The probation service's venture into financial partnerships with non statutory agencies during the 1990s was viewed both as a development opportunity for improving services and as a threat to professional identity and job security. Judith Rumgay studies partnership development with particular focus on programmes for substance misusing offenders. She explores tensions between probation and voluntary organizations, identifies features common to successful partnerships and compares partnership arrangements with in house specialist projects. She argues that the partnership enterprise touches the heart of the probation service's mission in local communities. Delivering

Rehabilitation Lol Burke, Steve Collett, 2014-12-05 Do offenders have the right to be rehabilitated and should the state be responsible for their rehabilitation? Should the public expect punitive and coercive approaches to offender rehabilitation? Why should the state be interested in the reform of individuals and how can helping offenders be justified when there are other disadvantaged groups in society who are unable to access the services they desperately need? Finally why does the state appear to target and criminalise certain groups and individuals and not others? These are just some of the questions asked in this new text which offers an analysis of the delivery of rehabilitative services to offenders over the past two decades. It focuses particularly on the ideological and political imperatives of a neoliberal state that intends to segment the work of the Probation Service and hand over the majority of its work to the private sector. Issues covered include governance, politics and performance of probation, occupational culture and professional identity, markets, profit and delivery, partnership, localism and civil society, citizenship, exclusion and the State. This book is aimed at academics, practitioners, managers and leaders within the field of corrections and wider social policy It will also appeal to undergraduates and postgraduates specialising in criminal justice criminology politics and social policy The Sociology of the Caring Professions Pamela Abbott,Liz Meerabeau,1998 This text discusses the role of the caring professions and reforms in the welfare state assessing the impact on organizational roles and relationships It should be of value to those studying sociology social policy nursing and social work Young People Leaving Care Bob Broad,1998 This book contains extensive practice information original research material and policy findings about young people leaving public care and the work of leaving care projects Each chapter contains good practice and policy examples and the book concludes with a critical analysis of key practice policy and theoretical issues Re-Thinking Social Research Beth Humphries,2017-07-05 Social research plays an important part in the social sciences and in the planning and implementation of personal social services Whilst considerable attention has been paid to the methods used to undertake social research little has been done to explore the processes under which it is carried out This volume explores the process of social research from an anti discriminatory perspective Contributors address themes connected to every aspect of social research from its design through fieldwork to implementation of findings Papers adopt critical perspectives to explore issues to do with many aspects of power and difference in research including the power of black feminist research issues in collaborative research anti discriminatory methodologies quality of life in people with learning difficulties and participatory research The book addresses many key issues which have been at the centre of current social debate and offers a unique contribution to the literature on research methodology As such it is likely to have a wide readership with both academic audiences and practice based welfare professions The History of Probation Philip Whitehead,Roger Statham,2006 This work tells the story of probation from its religious beginnings in 1876 through to the present day It explores probation by alluding to crime imprisonment politics and power increasing central control and criminology Beyond Offending Behaviour Mark Drakeford,Maurice Vanstone,1996 This book sets out the social and economic circumstances which dominate the lives of people who appear before the courts It links together contemporary theory and practice examples to argue that workers in this area must address those circumstances The British Journal of Criminology ,1992 Includes articles on criminology penology probation and criminal justice Racism and Anti-Racism in Probation David Denney,2004-01-14 Racism and Anti Racism in Probation analyses the complex processes by which black people are treated differentially by the probation service Drawing on detailed ethnographic material David Denney shows how conventions used by probation officers can discriminate against black people He considers the implications of recent changes in penal policy on the development of probation work and considers how future developments may lead to an anti racist form of probation practice The Colour of English Justice Bonny Mhlanga,1997 The continuing gap between the percentages of black and white people entering the criminal justice system particularly prisons observed both in North America and in England and Wales raises an old but still very important question of whether the over representation is the result of proportionately more black than white people committing offences or offences of a particular kind or whether it is the result of racial bias in the administration of criminal justice The data provided in this book shows that there were racial differences in the treatment of young offenders at each stage of the criminal justice process However that differential treatment could not be explained by significant racial differences in involvement in criminality
