

A LIFE OF PURE IMMANENCE

DELEUZE'S "CRITIQUE ET CLINIQUE" PROJECT

Daniel W. Smith

The critical (in the literary sense) and the clinical (in the medical sense) may be destined to enter into a new relationship of mutual learning.¹

Although Essays Critical and Clinical is the only book written by Gilles Deleuze that is devoted primarily to literature, literary references are present everywhere in his work, running parallel, almost, to the philosophical references. These include the books on Proust, Masoch, and Kafka; the long essays on Bene and Beckett and Bene; the chapter in Dialogues "On the Superiority of Anglo-American Literature"; and the profuse literary references in The Logic of Sense and Capitalism and Schizophrenia.

What role do these literary analyses play in Deleuze's philosophical oeuvre? In What is Philosophy, Deleuze and Guattari define philosophy as an activity that consists in the creation of concepts. But philosophy, they add, necessarily enters into variable relations with other domains such as science, medicine, and art. For art is an equally creative enterprise of thought, but one whose object is to create sensible aggregates rather than concepts. Great artists and authors are also great thinkers, but they think in terms of percepts and affects rather than concepts: painters think in terms of lines and colors, musicians think in sounds, film-makers think in images, writers think in words, and so on. Neither activity has any privilege over the other: creating a concept is neither more difficult nor more abstract than creating new visual, sonorous, or verbal combinations; and conversely, it is no easier to read an image, painting, or novel than it is to comprehend a concept. Philosophy, Deleuze insists, cannot be undertaken independently of science and art; it always enters into relations of mutual resonance and exchange with these other domains, though for reasons that are always internal to philosophy itself.²

Deleuze therefore writes on the arts not as a critic but as a philosopher, and his books and essays on the various arts, and on various artists and authors, must be read, as he himself says, as works of "philosophy, nothing but philosophy, in the traditional sense of the word."³ The cinema, for instance, produces images that move, and that move in time, and it is these two aspects of film that Deleuze set out to analyze in The Movement-Image and The Time-Image: "What exactly does the cinema show us about space and time that the other arts don't show?"⁴ Deleuze describes his two-volume study of the cinema as "a book of logic, a logic of the cinema" that sets out "to isolate certain cinematographic concepts," concepts that are specific to the cinema, but that can only be formed philosophically.⁵ Francis Bacon: The Logic of Sensation likewise creates a series of philosophical concepts, each of which relates to a particular aspect of Bacon's paintings, but which also finds a place in "a general logic of sensation."⁶ Essays Critical and Clinical must therefore be evaluated in the same manner, that is, in terms of the concepts Deleuze extracts from the literary works he examines. But if the Cinema volumes deal primarily with space and time, and Francis Bacon with the nature of sensation, Deleuze's writings on literature, it seems to me, are primarily linked with the problematic of Life. "You have seen what is essential for me," Deleuze wrote to one of his commentators, "this 'vitalism' or a conception of life as a non-organic power."⁷

For Deleuze, Life is an impersonal power that goes beyond one's personal life or lived experience, and writing itself, he says, is "a passage of Life that traverses both the livable and the lived."⁸ In one of the last essays he published before his suicide in November 1995, entitled "Immanence: A Life . . .", Deleuze wrote of a scene from Charles Dickens' Our Mutual Friend. A rogue despised by everyone is brought in on the verge of death, and the people tending to him suddenly manifest a kind of respect and love for the least sign of life in the dying Dickens writes: "No one has the least regard for the man; with them all, he has been an object of avoidance, suspicion, and aversion; but the condemnation and serious academic engagement After September 11 this discussion of Empire's political and legal theories was closely linked with the struggle to redefine America's place in a changed world The book was read as a diagnosis of our era and a call for liberatory action while Michael Hardt was acclaimed as the next Jacques Derrida Framing the debate about this landmark work The Empire's New Clothes brings together leading scholars to make sense of Empire's new vocabulary and tackle its claims head on Does the authors vision accurately describe the power structure of today's world Do the processes of globalization today represent a fundamental break from the past Is the book really a communist manifesto for the new age Empire's New Clothes investigates these and other key issues giving academics students and lay readers a handle on a work that touches the most vital themes of current political social and economic life Human Rights After Deleuze Christos Marneros, 2022-11-03 This book examines the possibility of creating new ways of existing beyond human rights Multiple socio political crises and the dominance of neoliberal and capitalist policies have led legal and political theorists to question the emancipatory promise of human rights and to reconceptualise human rights in theory and practice The possibility of creating new ways of existing beyond human rights has been left significantly under examined until now Having as its starting point the ferocious yet brief critique on human rights of one of the most prominent French philosophers of the 20th century Gilles Deleuze the book argues that Deleuze's critique is not only compatible with his broader thought but that it has the potential to give a new impetus to the current critiques of human rights within the disciplinary borders of legal and political theory The book draws upon Deleuze's broader thought but also radical legal and political theory and continental philosophy In particular it investigates and expands on two of Deleuze's most important notions namely those of immanence and becoming and their relation to the philosopher's critique of human rights In doing so it argues that these two notions are capable of questioning the dominant and dogmatic position that human rights enjoy

Khasnabish,2022-12-16 This book analyses the resolution of the psychic problem of diasporic existence from a postcolonial feminist perspective by inscribing and defining the meaning of virtual diaspora through the lens of the East India and the West It explores the situation that arises when one leaves one's country and becomes an emigrant immigrant which often causes pain both in the departure from one's motherland and in the adaptation to a new environment The book employs the theory of Deleuze and Guattari and explores the interstices of real and virtual diaspora and the aftermath of diaspora as a mental journey Adding a new interpretation of transcendence taken from the Indian perspective the book examines the Deleuze's theory of immanence and transcendence and the two major concepts of becoming and real virtual The book also examines the works of Helene Cixous J M Coetzee Jhumpa Lahiri Kunal Basu and Tagore in light of the concept of virtual diaspora and from a postcolonial feminist angle It does so by raising the following questions When one has emigrated to a different country can one conceive of that existence as real or virtual or both Do emigrants or diasporic individuals live a life of both real and virtual diaspora This comes from the idea that both real and virtual diaspora under different paradigms may be related to the power struggle and master slave dialectic that affects all of humanity A valuable addition to the study of postcolonial literature the book will also be of interest to researchers in the fields of diaspora studies postcolonial feminist theory postcolonial literature feminist philosophy interdisciplinary studies and Asian Studies in particular South Asian Studies

Being of Two

Minds Jonathan Goldberg, 2022-09-20 Being of Two Minds examines the place that early modern literature held in Modernist literary criticism For T S Eliot Virginia Woolf and William Empson the early modern period helps model a literary future At stake in their engagements across time were ontological questions about literature and its ability to mediate between the one and the many the particular and the general life and death the past and the present If reading and writing literature enables the mind to be in two places at once creative experience serves as a way to participate in an expanded field of consciousness alongside mortality Goldberg reads the readings that these modernists performed on texts that Eliot claimed for the canon like the metaphysical poets and Jacobean dramatists but also Shakespeare Milton Montaigne and Margaret Cavendish Ontological concerns are reflected in Eliot's engagement with Aristotle's theory of the soul and Empson's Buddhism These arguments about being affect minds and bodies and call into question sexual normativity Eliot glances at a sodomitical male mode of literary transmission Woolf produces a Judith Shakespeare to model androgynous being Empson refuses to distinguish activity from passivity to rewrite gender difference The work of one of our leading literary and cultural critics Being of Two Minds spans centuries to show how the most compelling and surprising ideas about mind experience and existence not only move between early modernity high modernism and our own moment but are also constituted through that very movement between times and minds

The Contemporary Writer and Their Suicide Josefa Ros Velasco, 2023-07-05 This volume is the continuation of the book Suicide in Modern Literature edited by Josefa Ros Velasco Considering the positive reception of this book Ros Velasco launches the second part entitled The Contemporary Writer and their Suicide This time leading representatives of various disciplines analyze the literary philosophical and biographical works of contemporary writers worldwide who attempted to commit suicide or achieved their goal looking for covert and overt clues about their intentions in their writings This book aims to continue shedding light on the social and structural causes that lead to suicide and on the suicidal mind but also to show that people assiduous to writing usually reflect their intentions to commit suicide in their writings to explain how these frequently veiled intentions can be revealed and interpreted and to highlight the potential of artistic philosophical and autobiographical writing as a tool to detect suicidal ideation and prevent its consummation in vulnerable people This book analyzes several case studies and their allusions to their contexts and the socio structural and environmental violence and pressures they suffered expressions of their will and agency feelings of dislocation between the individual reality and existential alienation and literary styles writing techniques and metaphorical language Psychopolitics Byung-Chul Han, 2025-06-24 Exploring how neoliberalism has discovered the productive force of the psyche Byung Chul Han a star of German philosophy continues his passionate critique of neoliberalism trenchantly describing a regime of technological domination that in contrast to Foucault's biopower has discovered the productive force of the psyche In the course of discussing all the facets of neoliberal psychopolitics fueling our contemporary crisis of freedom Han elaborates an analytical framework that provides an original theory of Big Data and a lucid phenomenology of emotion But this provocative essay proposes counter models too presenting a wealth of ideas and surprising alternatives at every turn

Lifework Moran Sheleg, 2024-07-23 Following the critical scepticism surrounding the notion of the self as a singular entity during the 1960s many artists and writers sought to test the apparent problem posed by autobiography as both a traditional genre and as a way of working Considering the consequent emergence of autotheory Lifework traces this shift in artistic and literary production during the late twentieth century and beyond examining a set of diverse practices that mine the line between what it is to make art and what it is to live life The book's chapters connect a variety of artistic strategies that cut across medium geography and time uncovering how the historical marginalisation of first person experience has taken on larger social cultural and political implications in the contemporary moment and how the work of living might still relate to the work of art
