Human Rights and the Body Annabelle Mooney, 2016-05-13 Human Rights and the Body is a response to the crisis in human rights to the very real concern that without a secure foundation for the concept of human rights their very existence is threatened While there has been consideration of the discourses of human rights and the way in which the body is written upon research in linguistics has not yet been fully brought to bear on either human rights or the body Drawing on legal concepts and aspects of the law of human rights Mooney aims to provide a universally defensible set of human rights and a foundation or rather a frame for them She argues that the proper frames for human rights are firstly the human body seen as an index reliant on the natural world secondly the globe and finally language These three frames generate rights to food water sleep and shelter environmental protection and a right against dehumanization This book is essential reading for researchers and graduate students in the fields of human rights and semiotics of law Human Rights and Justice for All

There has been a considerable focus in the last few years on the meaning of the Human Rights Act 1998 and its real and potential impact on judges and lawyers Much has been written on the implications of the new legislation for a variety of areas of law With the rising level of case law the emphasis is now turning to the impact of the legislation on specific areas of social life In this volume the focus is on the practice of human rights and how they are enforced in reality There is much discussion in the literature of a human rights culture but how precisely is such a culture to be created and how do we make sense of human rights In order to address these questions this volume is in two parts Part I examines general issues surrounding the full and effective implementation of human rights Part II explores the implications of human rights standards in particular areas in order to test whether a human rights culture has emerged Rights in the Home Emma the government should reconsider its proposals for the reform of legal aid The government has so far made welcome exemptions to its proposed residence test in the light of responses to its consultation but the Committee is still not satisfied that the proposed test will not affect vulnerable groups While accepting that it is legitimate for the government to introduce a residence test for civil legal aid and to restrict the scope of prison law funding the Committee calls for more and broader exemptions from these proposals to avoid breaches of the fundamental right of effective access to justice in individual cases The exceptional funding framework may not be working as intended and could therefore leave certain groups unable to access legal aid when human rights law requires it The proposal to remove cases with      International Human Rights Treaties United States.
