Bureau of Biological Survey, 1900 Conservation in Highly Fragmented Landscapes Mark Schwartz, 2012-12-06 Mark W Schwartz Soon after we came into extensive meadows and I was assured that those meadows continue for a hundred and fifty miles being in winter drowned lands and marshes By the dryness of the season they were now beautiful pastures and here presented itself one of the most delightful prospects I have ever beheld all low grounds being meadow and without wood and all of the high grounds being covered with trees and appearing like islands the whole scene seemed an elysium Capt Thomas Morris 1791 I am sitting in a 60 mile an hour bus sailing over a highway originally laid out for horse and buggy The ribbon of concrete has been widened and widened until the field fences threaten to topple into the road cuts In the narrow thread of sod between the shaved banks and the toppling fences grow the relics of what once was Illinois the prairie Making Nature Whole William R. Jordan, George M. Lubick, 2011-07-26 Making Nature Whole is a seminal volume that presents an in depth history of the field of ecological restoration as it has developed in the United States over the last three decades The authors draw from both published and unpublished sources including archival materials and oral histories from early practitioners to explore the development of the field and its importance to environmental management as well as to the larger environmental movement and our understanding of the world Considering antecedents as varied as monastic gardens the Scientific Revolution and the emerging nature awareness of nineteenth century Romantics and Transcendentalists Jordan and Lubick offer unique insight into the field s philosophical and theoretical underpinnings They examine specifically the more recent history including the story of those who first attempted to recreate natural ecosystems early in the 20th century as well as those who over the past few decades have realized the value of this approach not only as a critical element in conservation

but also as a context for negotiating the ever changing relationship between humans and the natural environment Making Nature Whole is a landmark contribution providing context and history regarding a distinctive form of land management and giving readers a fascinating overview of the development of the field It is essential reading for anyone interested in understanding where ecological restoration came from or where it might be going Niagara Historical Society ,1909
