The Rise of Corporate Publishing and Its Effects on Authorship in Early Twentieth Century America Kim Becnel, 2012-12-06 This study examines the way that the modernization and incorporation of the American publishing industry in the early twentieth century both helped to foment the emerging late industrial cultural hierarchy and capitalized on that same hierarchy to increase readership and profits More importantly however it attempts to trace the ways in which recently introduced marketing techniques reconceived ideas of audience and new paradigms in author publisher relations affected American writers of the 1930s and the literature they produced Using case studies of authors chosen from various points on the spectrum of so called high middle and lowbrow literature the author demonstrates that contrary to popular critical opinion this new publishing landscape dominated by big business practices and strict categorizations of audiences writers and works did not ruin or corrupt literature but in fact enriched our literary heritage by providing authors with inspiration and opportunity that they may not otherwise have had

Literature and the Growth of British Nationalism Francesco Crocco, 2014-02-07 This book explores how British Romantic poetry the writing reading and critical reception of it reinforced British nationalism in the 19th century ripening the political processes of nationhood that began with the first Act of Union in 1707 Using archival research on literary collections criticism and reviews this study documents the rise of bardic criticism in the 18th century a style of literary criticism that reinvented the vernacular poet as a national bard and established a national role for poetry Within this context this book offers a new reading of major works by Romantic poets from Wordsworth and Coleridge to Felicia Hemans and Anna Letitia Barbauld illuminating the ways they corroborated the public image of poets as bona fide national bards and advanced British nationalism even when they intentionally set out to oppose or reform the politics of state
