Connected and Automated Driving: Prospects for Urban Europe Mathias Mitteregger,Emilia M. Bruck,Aggelos Soteropoulos,Andrea Stickler,Martin Berger,Jens S. Dangschat,Rudolf Scheuven,Ian Banerjee,2021-10-07 This open access publication examines the impact of connected and automated vehicles on the European city and the conditions that can enable this technology to make a positive contribution to urban development The authors argue for two theses that have thus far received little attention in scientific discourse as connected and automated vehicles will not be ready for use in all parts of the city for a long time previously assumed effects from traffic safety to traffic performance as well as spatial effects will need to be re evaluated To ensure this technology has a positive impact on the mobility of the future transport and settlement policy regulations must be adapted and further developed Established territorial institutional and organizational boundaries must be investigated and challenged quickly Despite or indeed because of the many uncertainties we find ourselves at the beginning of a new design phase not only in terms of technology development but also regarding politics urban planning administration and civil society Dialogues in Urban and Regional Planning Michael Hibbard,Robert Freestone,Tore Øivin Sager,2013-05-29 Dialogues in Urban and Regional Planning 5 is a selection of some of the best scholarship in urban and regional planning from around the world The internationally recognized authors of these award winning papers take up a

Governing the Fragmented Metropolis Christina D. Rosan, 2016-10-18 Today the challenges facing our nation's metropolitan regions are enormous demographic change aging infrastructure climate change mitigation and adaptation urban sprawl spatial segregation gentrification education housing affordability regional equity and more Unfortunately local governments do not have the capacity to respond to the interlocking set of problems facing metropolitan regions and future challenges such as population growth and climate change will not make it easier But will we ever have a more effective and sustainable approach to developing the metropolitan region The answer may depend on our ability to develop a means to govern a metropolitan region that promotes population density regional public transit systems and the equitable development of city and suburbs within a system of land use and planning that is by and large a local one If we want to plan for sustainable regions we need to understand and strengthen existing metropolitan planning arrangements Christina D Rosan observes that policy makers and scholars have long agreed that we need metropolitan governance but they have debated the best approach She argues that we need to have a more nuanced understanding of both metropolitan development and local land use planning She interviews over ninety local and regional policy makers in Portland Denver and Boston and compares the uses of collaboration and authority in their varying metropolitan planning processes At one end of the spectrum is Portland's approach which leverages its authority and mandates local land use at the other end is Boston's which offers capacity building and financial incentives in the hopes of garnering voluntary cooperation Rosan contends that most regions lie somewhere in between and only by understanding our current hybrid system of local land use planning and metropolitan governance will we be able to think critically about what political arrangements and tools are necessary to support the development of environmentally economically and socially sustainable metropolitan regions
