consumption of food in schools in Mexico This book situates obesity as a structural problem enabled by market driven policy change problematizing the focus on individual behavior change which underpins current obesity policy It argues that the idea of healthy lifestyles draws attention away from the economic and political roots of obesity shifting blame onto an uneducated population Deploying Foucault s concept of dispositif Tenorio argues that healthy lifestyles functions as an ensemble of mechanisms to deploy representations of reality spaces institutions and subjectivities aligned with market principles constructing individuals both as culprits for what they eat and the prime locus of policy intervention to change diets He demonstrates how this ensemble enmeshes within the local cultural and economic conditions surrounding the provisioning of food in Mexican schools and how it is contested in the practices around cooking Expanding the conversation on the politics of food in schools obesity policy and dominant perspectives on the relation between food and health this book is a must read for scholars of food and nutrition public health and education as well as those with an interest in development studies and policy enactment and outcomes
