Immigrant Entrepreneurship in Cities Cathy Yang Liu, 2020-08-01 This book draws on evidence from global cities around the world and explores various dimensions of immigrant entrepreneurship and urban development. It provides a substantive contribution to the existing literature in several ways. First of all, it pursues a comparative approach with case studies from both the global north and global south so as to broaden the theoretical framework in this area, especially as pertinent to emerging economies. Second, it covers multiple scales from local community place making to urban contexts of reception to transnational networks and connections. Third, it combines approaches and research methods from numerous disciplines investigating entry dynamics, trends and patterns, business performance, challenges, and the impact of immigrant entrepreneurship in urban areas. Finally, it pays particular attention to current international experiences regarding urban policies on immigrant entrepreneurship. Given its scope, the book will be an enlightening read for anyone interested in immigration, entrepreneurship, and urban development issues around the globe. As global cities around the world continue to attract both domestic migrants and international migrants to their bustling metropolises, immigrant entrepreneurship is emerging as an important urban phenomenon that calls for careful examination. From Chinatown in New York to Silicon Valley in San Francisco to Little Africa in Guangzhou, immigrant-owned businesses are not only changing the business landscape in their host communities but also transforming the spatial, economic, social, and cultural dynamics of cities and regions.

Local Economic and Employment Development (LEED) Local Innovations for Growth in Central and Eastern Europe OECD, 2007-11-07 Demonstrates that the success of local development strategies depends on the capacity of the government and its partners to accelerate change within the policy and governance aspects of economic and social development.

Cities as Sustainable Ecosystems Peter Newman, Isabella Jennings, 2012-09-26 Modern city dwellers are largely detached from the environmental effects of their daily lives. The sources of the water they drink, the food they eat, and the energy they consume are all but invisible, often coming from other continents, and their waste ends up in places beyond their city boundaries. Cities as Sustainable Ecosystems shows how cities and their residents can begin to reintegrate into their bioregional environment and how cities themselves can be planned with nature's organizing principles in mind. Taking cues from living systems for sustainability strategies, Newman and Jennings reassess urban design by exploring flows of energy, materials, and information along with the interactions between human and non-human parts of the system. Drawing on examples from all corners of the world, the authors explore natural patterns and processes that cities can emulate in order to move toward sustainability. Some cities have adopted simple strategies such as harvesting rainwater, greening roofs, and producing renewable energy. Others have created biodiversity parks for endangered species, community gardens that support a connection to their foodshed, and pedestrian-friendly spaces that encourage walking and cycling. A powerful model for urban redevelopment, Cities as Sustainable Ecosystems describes aspects of urban ecosystems from the visioning process to achieving economic security to fostering a sense of place.

Revising Smart Cities with Regenerative Design

Zaheer Allam, Peter Newman, 2023-04-12 This book presents a road map to urban regeneration through the contemporary concept of smart cities. It investigates why the concept has gained adoption as it has but until now it has been geared towards a profit making venture by large corporations and ignoring the economic aspirations of smaller companies and city councils. The technologies can provide enhanced liveability levels if the concept is redefined. This work will be of interest to academics and policy makers looking at exploring how to drive urban regeneration in a sustainable and inclusive fashion while supporting local economies. It presents a case study of Port Louis Mauritius with unique insights and data. Academics, policy makers and urban developers could potentially adopt the model and calibrate it to various cities and quantify the economic and social benefits. Better Spending for Localizing Global Sustainable Development Goals Fayyaz Baqir, Nipa Banerjee, Sanni Yaya, 2019-11-05 This book centers around an intense debate among donors, policymakers, development practitioners and academics on the efficacy of aid in eradicating poverty while promoting human development. It seeks to fill the gap in present literature by presenting stories of better spending through implementing Sustainable Development Goals and addressing Agenda 2030 via indigenization of global development goals with initiatives at local and national levels. The book adopts an innovative approach to dealing with aid effectiveness by highlighting the relevance of better spending rather than excessive spending. It does so with real life examples of interventions made in the Global South to realize the vision of thinking globally and acting locally. These case studies speak to the significance of communities' role in shouldering responsibility for planning, financing, operating and maintaining local developmental initiatives. The examples also demonstrate how aid serves its purpose when used as an investment in communities and enterprising individuals in order to realize the strategic impact of giving and build a local receiving mechanism for indigenizing and achieving global development goals. The book references cases of better spending by governments, philanthropists and civil society organizations, CSOs from across Asia, Africa and Latin America on a range of issues and will thus be of interest to development practitioners, policymakers, donors, philanthropists, civil society organizations and academics and students of international development studies. An Introduction to Community Development Rhonda Phillips, Robert Pittman, 2008-12-02 Comprehensive and practical, this textbook enables students to connect academic study and professional know how and demonstrates how to best plan the rebuilding, revitalization and development of communities utilizing a wide variety of economic and strategic tools.
