Methods of Marking Fish and Shellfish Larry A. Nielsen, 1992      Methods of Marking Fish and Shellfish Larry A. Nielsen, 1992      Special Publication - American Fisheries Society, 1970      Stock Identification Methods Lisa A. Kerr, Steven X. Cadrin, Kevin D. Friedland, Stefano Mariani, John R. Waldman, 2004-10-15

Stock Identification Methods provides a comprehensive review of the various disciplines used to study the population structure of fishery resources. It represents the worldwide experience and perspectives of experts on each method assembled through a working group of the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea. The book is organized to foster interdisciplinary analyses and conclusions about stock structure, a crucial topic for fishery science and management. Technological advances have promoted the development of stock identification methods in many directions, resulting in a confusing variety of approaches. Based on central tenets of population biology and management needs, Stock Identification Methods offers a unified framework for understanding stock structure by promoting an understanding of the relative merits and sensitivities of each approach. Describes eighteen distinct approaches to stock identification grouped into sections on life history traits, environmental signals, genetic analyses, and applied marks. Features experts' reviews of benchmark case studies, general protocols, and the strengths and weaknesses of each identification method. Reviews statistical techniques for exploring stock patterns, testing for differences among putative stocks, stock discrimination, and stock composition analysis. Focuses on the challenges of interpreting data and managing mixed stock fisheries.

Volume 1 describes research design and proper analytic methods prior to conducting research, as well as methods and considerations for capturing and handling wild animals and information on identification and marking of captured animals. It also includes new chapters on nutritional research and field sign identification, and on emerging topics including structured decision making. Finally, Volume 1 addresses measurements of wildlife abundance and habitat, and research on individual animals. Volume 2 begins with a section on the relationship between research and management, including public outreach, described in a context that encourages engagement prior to initiation of management An adaptive management approach is described as a cornerstone of natural resource management followed by a section on managing landscapes and wildlife populations The volume also includes new chapters on ethics in wildlife science and conservation conflict resolution and management and land reclamation A standard text in a variety of courses the Techniques Manual as it is commonly called covers every aspect of modern wildlife management and provides practical information for applying the hundreds of methods described in its pages This deft and thorough update ensures that The Wildlife Techniques Manual will remain an indispensable resource one that professionals and students in wildlife biology conservation and management simply cannot do without

Ecology, behaviour and conservation of the charrs, genus *Salvelinus Pierre Magnan, Céline Audet, Hélène Glémet, Michel Legault, Marco A. Rodríguez, Eric B. Taylor, 2013-03-09 Salvelinus species are one of the most thoroughly studied groups of fishes Many reasons explain this intense interest in charr biology Charrs have a Holarctic distribution encompassing many Asian North American and European countries and occupy diverse marine and freshwater environments Furthermore the current distribution of charr includes areas that were directly influenced by climate and topographic change associated with the many Pleistocene glaciations Undoubtedly these conditions have promoted much of the tremendous morphological ecological and genetic variability and plasticity within Salvelinus species and they make charr very good models to study evolutionary processes in action Many charr species also exhibit demographic characteristics such as slow growth late maturity and life in extreme environments that may increase their susceptibility to extinction from habitat changes and overexploitation especially in depauperate aquatic habitats This vulnerability makes understanding their biology of great relevance to biodiversity and conservation Finally charr are of great cultural commercial and recreational significance to many communities and their intimate linkage with human societies has stimulated much interest in this enigmatic genus This volume comprises a selection of papers presented at the fourth International Charr Symposium held in Trois Rivières Québec Canada from 26 June to 1 July 2000 It includes 31 papers on ecological interactions and behaviour trophic polymorphism movement and migration ecophysiology and evolutionary genetics ecological parasitology environmental stress and conservation These studies cannot cover all recent developments in the ecology behaviour and conservation of Salvelinus species but collecting them into a special volume should bring attention to current research on this important genus and stimulate further work on Salvelinus species connectivity This authoritative book provides a first time comprehensive review of the major ecological interactions across tropical marine ecosystems that result from the mutual exchange of nutrients organic matter fish and crustaceans A group of leading authors from around the world reviews the patterns and underlying mechanisms of important biogeochemical and biological linkages among tropical coastal ecosystems in 15 chapters Included are chapters that review cutting edge tools to study and quantify these linkages the importance of such linkages for fisheries and how tropical ecosystems should be conserved and managed for sustainable use by future generations The book uses examples from all over the world and provides an up to date review of the latest published literature This book is a must read for professionals working on the conservation management and ecology of mangrove seagrass and coral reef ecosystems

Selection and Breeding Programs in Aquaculture Trygve Gjerdem, 2005-04-13 Although aquaculture as a biological production system has a long history systematic and efficient breeding programs to improve economically important traits in the farmed species have rarely been utilized until recently except for salmonid species This means that the majority of aquaculture production more than 90 % is based on genetically unimproved stocks In farm animals the situation is vastly different practically no terrestrial farm production is based on genetically unimproved and undomesticated populations This difference between aquaculture and livestock production is in spite of the fact that the basic elements of breeding theory are the same for fish and shellfish as for farm animals One possible reason for the difference is the complexity of reproductive biology in aquatic species and special consideration needs to be taken in the design of breeding plans for these species Since 1971 AKVAFORSK has continuously carried out large scale breeding research projects with salmonid species and during the latest 15 years also with a number of fresh water and marine species Results from this work and the results from other institutions around the world have brought forward considerable knowledge which make the development of efficient breeding programs feasible The genetic improvement obtained in selection programs for fish and shellfish is remarkable and much higher than what has been achieved in terrestrial farm animals
