Constructing Community Brian Elliott, 2010-08-20 Constructing Community examines community from the particular perspective of the shaping and control of urban space in contemporary liberal democracies Following a consideration and critique of influential theories of community that have arisen within European philosophy over the last three decades Brian Elliott investigates parallel approaches to community within urban theory and practice over the same period Underlying the comparison of political theory and urban practice is a basic assumption that community and place are intimately connected such that the one cannot be adequately understood without the other The underlying intention of this book is to advocate a particular understanding of community one that centers on collective grassroots oppositional action While it draws on certain current theories and practices the model of community put forward is far from the orthodox position This study is a provocative and original analysis of the question of urban politics in contemporary liberal democracies It offers a strong case for reconsidering current debates on democratic politics in light of the connection between political power and the control of public space and the built environment Imagining Globalization H. Leung, M. Hendley, R. Compton, B. Haley, 2009-11-23 This collection gives voice to the peoples and groups impacted by globalization as they seek to negotiate their identities language use and territorial boundaries within a larger global context Rather than viewing globalization as one dimensional i e cultural economic or political the approaches taken by the authors reflect a nuanced and multifaceted discussion of globalization that integrates all three perspectives They explore identity boundaries language use and other issues in the context of specific temporal and spatial contexts
