The Encyclopedia Americana ,2002 Forthcoming Books Rose Army, 1999-08 Irish Literature in the Celtic Tiger Years 1990 to 2008 Susan Cahill, 2011-04-01 When

Irish culture and economics underwent rapid changes during the Celtic Tiger Years. Anne Enright, Colum McCann and N.D. O'Shea began writing. Now that period of Irish history has closed, this study uncovers how their writing captured that unique historical moment. By showing how N.D. O'Shea's novels act as considered arguments against attempts to disavow the past, how McCann's protagonists come to terms with their history, and how Enright's fiction explores connections and relationships with the female body, Susan Cahill's study pinpoints common concerns for contemporary Irish writers: the relationship between the body, memory and history; between generations and between past and present. Cahill is able to raise wider questions about Irish culture by looking specifically at how writers engage with the body. In exploring the writers' concern with embodied histories, related questions concerning gender, race and Irishness are brought to the fore. Such interrogations of corporeality alongside history are imperative, making this a significant contribution to ongoing debates of feminist theory in Irish Studies. Vanity Fair, 1993
