Theatres of Memory Raphael Samuel, 1994 This work offers an overview of how the past has been manipulated in art politicized and sold to the consumer yet takes issue with those who claim this interest in heritage is merely obsessive nostalgia The author covers a multitude of topics such as the Festival of Britain and conservation

The American Catalogue, 1891 Mission Life in Cree-Ojibwe Country Elizabeth Bingham Young, E. Ryerson Young, 2014-12-28 In May of 1868 Elizabeth Bingham Young and her new husband Egerton Ryerson Young began a long journey from Hamilton Ontario to the Methodist mission of Rossville For the next eight years Elizabeth supported her husband's work at two mission houses Norway House and then Berens River Unprepared for the difficult conditions and the eight months long winter and unimpressed with eating fish twenty one times a week the young Upper Canada wife rose to the challenge In these remote outposts she gave birth to three children acted as a nurse and doctor and applied both perseverance and determination to learning Cree while also coping with poverty and short supplies within her community Her account of mission life as seen through the eyes of a woman is the first of its kind to be archived and now to appear in print Accompanying Elizabeth's memoir and offering a counterpoint to it are the reminiscences of her eldest son Eddie Born at Norway House in 1869 and nursed by a Cree woman from infancy Eddie was immersed in local Cree and Ojibwe life culture and language in many ways exemplifying the process of reverse acculturation often in evidence among the children of missionaries Like those of his mother Eddie's memories capture the sensory and emotional texture of mission life providing a portrait that is startling in its immediacy Skillfully woven together and meticulously annotated by Jennifer Brown these two remarkable recollections of mission life are an invaluable addition to the fields of religious missionary and Aboriginal history In their power to resurrect experience they are also a fascination to read

A Stranger in My Own Country Hans Fallada, 2015-01-20 I lived the same life as everyone else the life of ordinary people the masses Sitting in a prison cell in the autumn of 1944 Hans Fallada sums up his life under the National Socialist dictatorship the time of inward emigration Under conditions of close confinement in constant fear of discovery he writes himself free from the nightmare of the Nazi years His frank and sometimes provocative memoirs were thought for many years to have been lost They are published here in English for the first time The confessional mode did not come naturally to Fallada the writer of fiction but in the mental and emotional distress of 1944 self reflection became a survival strategy In the house of the dead he exacts his political revenge on paper I know that I am crazy I'm risking not only my own life I'm also risking the lives of many of the people I am writing about he notes driven by the compulsion to write And write he does about spying and denunciation about the threat to his livelihood and his literary work about the fate of many friends and contemporaries such as Ernst Rowohlt and Emil Jannings To conceal his intentions and to save paper he uses abbreviations His notes constantly exposed to the gaze of the prison warders become a kind of secret code He finally succeeds in smuggling the manuscript out of the prison although it remained unpublished for half a century

These revealing memoirs by one of the best known German writers of the 20th century will be of great interest to all readers of modern literature Wedding's Season Artur Friedberg, 2016-04-21 Recollection of youthful romantic and passionate love which never turned into stable relationship tragically ended marriage and other personal and family problems very difficult often controversial life of a talented actress under communism in Poland described day in day out and which almost parenthetically covering the last twenty years of the regime and the clandestine activities of opposition against the communism are the few threads of this multidimensional novel The contemporary dimension of the novel comprises Polish post communism and built up of the new social class called red bourgeoisie and the way the main character is confronted with religious ignorance and intolerance corruption and frequent appearance of cases of perverse often duplicitous accusations of collaboration with the ex communist security system aiming as an embarrassing argument in political and private matters and often instrumental as a blackmail There are other political moral and social overtones too Portland Illustrated John Neal, 1874
