People On The Move Environmental Migrant:

People on the Move in a Changing Climate Etienne Piguet, Frank Laczko, 2013-10-17 Policymakers around the world are increasingly concerned about the likely impact of climate change and environmental degradation on the movement of people. This book takes a hard look at the existing evidence available to policymakers in different regions of the world. How much do we really know about the impact of environmental change on migration? How will different regions of the world be affected in the future? Is there evidence to show that migration can help countries adapt to environmental change? What types of research have been conducted? How reliable is the evidence? These are some of the questions considered in this book, which presents for the first time a synthesis of relevant research findings for each major region of the world. Written by regional experts, the book provides a comprehensive overview of the key findings of existing studies on the linkages between environmental change and the movement of people. More and more reports on migration and the environment are being published, but the information is often scattered between countries and within regions, and it is not always clear how much of this information is based on solid research. This book brings this evidence together for the first time, highlighting innovative studies and research gaps. In doing this, the book seeks to help decision makers draw lessons from existing studies and to identify priorities for further research.

Climate Change, Disasters and People on the Move Aylin Yildiz Noorda, 2022-11-07 The open access publication of this book has been published with the support of the Swiss National Science Foundation. Climate change is forcing us to consider the right of people to leave their disappearing homelands, and the shape this right should take. Climate Change Disasters and People on the Move proposes international protection as a solution with three pillars: granting protection against return to the country of origin, non-refoulement, preventing future displacement, and facilitating safe, orderly, and regular migration in the context of disasters and climate change. Dr Aylin Yildiz Noorda uses the theories of common concern of humankind and community interests to operationalise her proposal, providing a blueprint for future claims.

The Atlas of Environmental Migration Dina Ionesco, Daria Mokhnacheva, François Gemenne, 2016-11-25 As climate change and extreme weather events increasingly threaten traditional landscapes and livelihoods of entire communities, the need to study its impact on human migration and population displacement has never been greater. The Atlas of Environmental Migration is the first illustrated publication mapping this complex phenomenon. It clarifies terminology and concepts, draws a typology of migration related to environment and climate change, describes the multiple factors at play, explains the challenges and highlights the opportunities related to this phenomenon. Through elaborate maps, diagrams, illustrations, case studies from all over the world based on the most updated international research findings, the Atlas guides the reader from the roots of environmental migration through to governance. In addition to the primary audience of students and scholars of environment studies, climate change, geography, and migration, it will also be of interest to researchers and students in politics, economics, and international relations departments.

Routledge Handbook of Environmental

Displacement and Migration Robert McLeman, François Gemenne, 2018-03-09 The last twenty years have seen a rapid increase in scholarly activity and publications dedicated to environmental migration and displacement and the field has now reached a point in terms of profile complexity and sheer volume of reporting that a general review and assessment of existing knowledge and future research priorities is warranted So far such a product does not exist The Routledge Handbook of Environmental Displacement and Migration provides a state of the science review of research on how environmental variability and change influence current and future global migration patterns and in some instances trigger large scale population displacements Drawing together contributions from leading researchers in the field this compendium will become a go to guide for established and newly interested scholars for government and policymaking entities and for students and their instructors It explains theoretical conceptual and empirical developments that have been made in recent years describes their origins and connections to broader topics including migration research development studies and international public policy and law and highlights emerging areas where new and or additional research and reflection are warranted The structure and the nature of the book allow the reader to quickly find a concise review relevant to conducting research or developing policy on particular topics and to obtain a broad reliable survey of what is presently known about the subject

Energy Access and Forced Migration Owen Grafham, 2019-12-06 This edited collection brings together a selection of expert authors and draws on a wide range of case studies geographies and perspectives to explore the links between forced migration and energy access This book addresses the paucity of academic study on how energy is delivered to the millions of people currently forcibly displaced The contributions throughout assess the current energy governance regimes models of delivery and innovative solutions that are dictating how energy is and can be provided to those who have been forced to move away from their homes By bringing together author teams of practitioners academics businesses and policy makers this collection encourages interdisciplinary dialogue about the best way of approaching energy provision for the forcibly displaced This book will be of great interest to students and scholars of energy access and policy environmental justice and equity and migration and refugee studies

Humans on the Move Grant Dawson, Rachel Laut, 2021-12-06 As global climate change continues to alter the environment humans are moving In this context human mobility can be an empowered adaptation strategy or an unwelcome necessity for survival with a high cost Existing legal frameworks provide only a patchwork of protection for some climate change mobility scenarios In Humans on the Move Grant Dawson and Rachel Laut investigate the development of an adaptive approach to climate change mobility and explore how transformational adaptation strategies can and must be integrated with a rights based approach

The Global Business Environment Janet Morrison, 2023-03-09 This text challenges students to think critically about global issues that affect the business environment and provides them with a wealth of pedagogical features that help cement learning Its coverage includes the economic political social legal cultural technological and financial environments The book is truly global in coverage with case studies and examples from all over the world including Afghanistan China Sweden and Thailand It also has a strong focus on ethics responsibilities and sustainability and what this means for business organizations Janet Morrison s writing style makes difficult concepts easy to understand and its clarity makes it suitable for students with English as a second language New to this edition The theme of uncertainty in global contexts examining how best to assess and confront the challenges of uncertainties and risks in the differing dimensions of the business environment A chapter on the worldwide pandemic and the global business environment Increased coverage of FDI industrial policy and global communication New coverage relating to race relations and decolonising the curriculum 10 new cases making a total of 52 cases with all other cases fully updated A brand new decision making feature linked to some of the cases studies

Displacement, Development, and Climate Change Nina Hall, 2016-03-22 This book focuses on one critical challenge climate change Climate change is predicted to lead to an increased intensity and frequency of natural disasters An increase in extreme weather events global temperatures and higher sea levels may lead to displacement and migration and will affect many dimensions of the economy and society Although scholars are examining the complexity and fragmentation of the climate change regime they have not examined how our existing international development migration and humanitarian organizations are dealing with climate change Focusing on three institutions the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees the International Organization for Migration and the United Nations Development Programme the book asks how have these inter governmental organizations responded to climate change And are they moving beyond their original mandates given none were established with a mandate for climate change It traces their responses to climate change in their rhetoric policy structure operations and overall mandate change Hall argues that international bureaucrats can play an important role in mandate expansion often deciding whether and how to expand into a new issue area and then lobbying states to endorse this expansion They make changes in rhetoric policy structure and operations on the ground and therefore forge frame and internalize new issue linkages This book helps us to understand how institutions established in the 20th century are adapting to a 21st century world It will be of great interest to scholars and students of International Relations Development Studies Environmental Politics International Organizations and Global Governance as well as international officials

The Oxford Handbook of Refugee and Forced Migration Studies Elena Fiddian-Qasmiyeh, Gil Loescher, Katy Long, Nando Sigona, 2014-06-12 Refugee and Forced Migration Studies has grown from being a concern of a relatively small number of scholars and policy researchers in the 1980s to a global field of interest with thousands of students worldwide studying displacement either from traditional disciplinary perspectives or as a core component of newer programmes across the Humanities and Social and Political Sciences Today the field encompasses both rigorous academic research which may or may not ultimately inform policy and practice as well as action research focused on advocating in favour of refugees needs and rights This authoritative Handbook critically evaluates the birth and development of Refugee and Forced Migration Studies and analyses the key contemporary and future challenges faced by academics and practitioners working with and for forcibly displaced populations around the world The 52 state of the art chapters written by leading academics practitioners and policymakers working in universities research centres think tanks NGOs and international organizations provide a comprehensive and cutting edge overview of the key intellectual political social and institutional challenges arising from mass displacement in the world today The chapters vividly illustrate the vibrant and engaging debates that characterize this rapidly expanding field of research and practice

Environment, Climate Change and Migration in South Asia Amit Ranjan,Rajesh Kharat,Pallavi Deka,2023-03-31 Climate change has been fueling migration and according to some policy reports there could more than one billion climate migrants refugees across the world by 2050 In South Asia disasters environmental degradation and climate change are increasing the number of migrants every year In South Asia like other parts of the world migrants and displaced people mainly move within their respective countries but some cross the porous border At most places the migrants and displaced people face hostile situation as they are not welcome by their local host population The chapters in the book highlight the challenges and inadequacies of governments and communities in protecting the environment as well as the disproportionate effect that climate change has on the poor and marginalized groups The book also discusses the gendered experiences of climate related migrations and policy measures which need to be implemented to counter forced displacements and environment degradation along with the legal and institutional resources which could help mitigate climate change and protect climate refugees This book will be of interest to students and researchers of development studies ecology and environment migration sociology law and governance human ecology climate change and economics
