Arena,2013-06-29 Louis A Arena University of Delaware Newark DE This monograph contains select revised and invited papers which deal with the topic Language Proficiency

Defining Teaching and Testing This topic was the theme of the eighth annual symposium held at the University of Delaware. The papers contained in this volume are invited papers or were originally scheduled for presentation and or presented at the eighth annual Delaware Symposium on Language Studies. The papers combine research conducted in the areas of teaching testing and defining second language proficiency within the profession of applied linguistics. They are divided into three principal sections: Applied Linguistics and Language Proficiency; Language Proficiency in Reading and Writing; and Testing for Language Proficiency. In Part I Paul Angelis, Applied Linguistics: Realities and Projections, re the Teaching Profession sketches a historical portrait of Applied Linguistics: its definition, presence and role in the profession that teaches second language proficiency. Angelis concludes that Applied Linguistics is still a young discipline in terms of substance, organization and strategy and that these three components will determine the prospects for the future of applied linguistics re the teaching profession. The next six papers address the issue of second language proficiency from various points of view. Kensaku Yoshida's essay, Knowing vs Believing vs Feeling: Studies on Japanese Bilinguals, concludes that some Japanese bilinguals are actually not necessarily bilingual because they very often face problems requiring other kinds of proficiency i.e.

A Discipline-Based Teaching and Learning Center Gili Marbach-Ad, Laura C. Egan, Katerina V. Thompson, 2015-03-03. This book describes the design and implementation of a discipline specific model of professional development: the disciplinary Teaching and Learning Center (TLC). TLC was born from a strong commitment to improving undergraduate science education through supporting the front line educators who play an essential role in this mission. The TLC's comprehensive approach encompasses consultation seminars and workshops, acculturation activities for new faculty members and teaching preparatory courses as well as a certificate program for graduate students. At the University of Maryland, TLC serves biology and chemistry faculty members, postdoctoral associates and graduate students. The Center is deeply integrated into the departmental culture and its emphasis on pedagogical content knowledge makes its activities highly relevant to the community that it serves. The book reflects ten years of intensive work on the design and implementation of the model. Beginning with a needs assessment and continuing with ongoing evaluation, the book presents a wealth of information about how to design and implement effective professional development. In addition, it discusses the theory underlying each of the program components and provides an implementation guide for adopting or adapting the TLC model and its constituent activities at other institutions. In this book, the authors describe how they created the highly successful discipline based Teaching and Learning Center at the University of Maryland. This is a must read for anyone interested in improving higher education. Charles Henderson, Co-Director, Center for Research on Instructional Change in Postsecondary Education, Western Michigan University. This book will provide a much needed resource for helping campus leaders and faculty development professionals create robust programs that meet the needs of science faculty. Susan Elrod, Dean, College of Science and Mathematics, Fresno State. The authors provide a road map and guidance for higher education professional development in the natural science for educators at all levels While the examples are from the sciences the approaches are readily adaptable to all disciplines Spencer A Benson Director of the Centre for Teaching and Learning Enhancement University of Macau
