Rise Of The Rustbelt Philip Cooke, 2020-10-07 This book shows the possibilities and some of the limits of policy efforts made by business and government to bring about the renewal of badly hit regional economies whose dependence on industries of the earlier phases of industrialization left them vulnerable to deindustrialization

Remaking the Rust Belt Tracy Neumann, 2016-05-26 Cities in the North Atlantic coal and steel belt embodied industrial power in the early twentieth century but by the 1970s their economic and political might had been significantly diminished by newly industrializing regions in the Global South This was not simply a North American phenomenon the precipitous decline of mature steel centers like Pittsburgh Pennsylvania and Hamilton Ontario was a bellwether for similar cities around the world Contemporary narratives of the decline of basic industry on both sides of the Atlantic make the postindustrial transformation of old manufacturing centers seem inevitable the product of natural business cycles and neutral market forces In Remaking the Rust Belt Tracy Neumann tells a different story one in which local political and business elites drawing on a limited set of internationally circulating redevelopment models pursued postindustrial urban visions They hired the same consulting firms shared ideas about urban revitalization on study tours at conferences and in the pages of professional journals and began to plan cities oriented around services rather than manufacturing all well in advance of the economic malaise of the 1970s While postindustrialism remade cities it came with high costs In following this strategy public officials sacrificed the well being of large portions of their populations Remaking the Rust Belt recounts how local leaders throughout the Rust Belt created the jobs services leisure activities and cultural institutions that they believed would attract younger educated middle class professionals In the process they abandoned social democratic goals and widened and deepened economic inequality among urban residents

Postindustrial DIY Daniel Campo, 2024-02-13 Chronicles grassroots efforts to recover rebuild and enjoy architecturally iconic but economically obsolete places in the American Rust Belt A pioneering Detroit automobile factory A legendary iron mill at the edge of Pittsburgh A campus of concrete grain elevators in Buffalo Two monumental train stations one in Buffalo the other in Detroit These once noble sites have since fallen from their towering grace As local elected leaders did everything they could to destroy what was left of these places citizens saw beauty and utility in these industrial ruins and felt compelled to act Postindustrial DIY tells their stories The culmination of more than a dozen years of on the ground investigation ethnography and historical analysis author and urbanist Daniel Campo immerses the reader in this postindustrial landscape weaving the perspectives of dozens of DIY protagonists as well as architects planners and preservationists Working without capital expertise and sometimes permission in a milieu dominated by powerful political and economic interests these do it yourself actors are driven by passion and a sense of civic duty rather than by profit or political expediency They have craftily remade these sites into collective preservation projects and democratic grounds for arts and culture environmental engagement regional celebrations itinerant play and in the moment constructions Their projects are generating excitement about the prospect of Rust Belt life even as they often remain invisible to the uninformed passerby and fall short of professional preservation or environmental reclamation standards Demonstrating that there is no such thing as a site that is too far gone to save or reuse Postindustrial DIY is rich with case studies that demonstrate how great architecture is not simply for the elites or the wealthy The citizen preservationists and urbanists described in this book offer looser more playful and often more publicly satisfying alternatives to the development practices that have transformed iconic sites into expensive real estate or a clean slate for the next profitable endeavor Transcending the disciplinary boundaries of architecture historic preservation city planning and landscape architecture Postindustrial DIY suggests new ways to engage adapt and preserve architecturally compelling sites and bottom up strategies for Rust Belt revival

Competition, Competitive Advantage, and Clusters Robert Huggins, Hiro Izushi, 2012-09-20 Harvard professor Michael Porter has been one of the most influential figures in strategic management research over the last three decades He infused a rigorous theoretical framework of industrial organization economics with the then still embryonic field of strategic management and elevated it to its current status as an academic discipline Porter's outstanding career is also characterized by its cross disciplinary nature Following his most important work on strategic management he then made a leap to the policy side and dealt with a completely different set of analytical units More recently he has made a foray into inner city development environmental regulations and health care services Throughout these explorations Porter has maintained his integrative approach seeking a road that links management case studies and the general model building of mainstream economics With expert contributors from a range of disciplines including strategic management economic development economic geography and planning this book assesses the contribution Michael Porter has made to these respective disciplines It clarifies the sources of tension and controversy relating to all the major strands of Porter's work and provides academics students and practitioners with a critical guide for the application of Porter's models The book highlights that while many of the criticisms of Porter's ideas are valid they are almost an inevitable outcome for a scholar who has sought to build bridges across wide disciplinary valleys His work has provided others with a set of frameworks to explore in more depth the nature of competition competitive advantage and clusters from a range of vantage points

Many Urbanisms Martin J. Murray, 2022-02-15 Winner 2023 Choice Outstanding Academic Title Now for the first time in history the majority of the world's population lives in cities But urbanization is accelerating in some places and slowing down in others The sprawling megacities of Asia and Africa as well as many other smaller and medium sized cities throughout the Global South are expected to continue growing At the same time older industrial cities in wealthier countries are experiencing protracted socioeconomic decline Nonetheless mainstream urban studies continues to treat a handful of superstar cities in Europe and North America as the exemplars of world urbanism even though current global growth and development represent a dramatic break with past patterns Martin J Murray offers a groundbreaking guide to the multiplicity heterogeneity and complexity of contemporary global urbanism He identifies and traces four distinct pathways that characterize cities today tourist entertainment cities with world class aspirations struggling postindustrial cities megacities experiencing hypergrowth and instant cities or master planned cities built from scratch Murray shows how these different types of cities respond to different pressures and logics rather than progressing through the stages of a predetermined linear path He highlights new spatial patterns of urbanization that have undermined conventional understandings of the city exploring the emergence of polycentric fragmented haphazard and unbounded metropolises Such cities he argues should not be seen as deviations from a norm but rather as alternatives within a constellation of urban possibility Innovative and wide ranging Many Urbanisms offers ways to understand the disparate forms of global cities today on their own terms The Road Through the Rust Belt William M.
