Ritual Enemas and Snuffs in the Americas Peter A. G. M. de Smet, 1985 Ritual Enemas and Snuffs in the Americas Peter A. Mechanisms of Drug Interactions Patrick F. D'Arcy, James C. McElnay, Peter G. Welling, 2012-12-06 Over the years a number of excellent books have classified and detailed drug drug interactions into their respective categories e.g. interactions at plasma protein binding sites those altering intestinal absorption or bioavailability those involving hepatic metabolising enzymes those involving competition or antagonism for receptor sites and drug interactions modifying excretory mechanisms Such books have presented extensive tables of interactions and their management Although of considerable value to clinicians such publications have not however been so expressive about the individual mechanisms that underlie these interactions It is within this sphere of mechanisms that this present volume specialises It deals with mechanisms of in vitro

and in vivo drug drug drug food and drug herbals interactions and those that cause drugs to interfere with diagnostic laboratory tests We believe that an explanation of the mechanisms of such interactions will enable practitioners to understand more fully the nature of the interactions and thus enable them to manage better their clinical outcome If mechanisms of interactions are better understood then it may be possible for the researcher to develop meaningful animal biochemical tissue culture or physicochemical models to which new molecules could be exposed during their development stages The present position which largely relies on patients experiencing adverse interactions before they can be established or documented can hardly be regarded as satisfactory This present volume is classified into two major parts firstly pharmacokinetic drug interactions and secondly pharmacodynamic drug interactions

Deconstructing America Peter Mason, 2024-02-29 First published in 1990 Deconstructing America breaks new ground by locating the European discovery of America within the study of representations of Otherness Peter Mason acknowledges that America was part of the European imagination before its discovery but challenges the claim that the European vision of America is merely a distorted view of some extra European reality He relates the way in which Europe tended to see the inhabitants of South America as monstrous figures to a longstanding European tradition on the Plinian human races and goes on to point out that the existence of similar representations among contemporary Amerindian peoples calls into question the extent to which ethnocentrism is an exclusively European idea Drawing on anthropological literary and philosophical studies he shows how European representations of America constitute a cultural monologue which tells more about the Old World than the New This book will be a stimulating reading for all those working in the fields of symbolic and cultural anthropology semiotics cultural studies Latin America structuralism and deconstruction

Native Intoxicants of North America Sean Rafferty, 2023-08-18 Though scholarship on intoxicants in regions like Asia Africa Mesoamerica and South America is plentiful Native Intoxicants of North America represents the first foray into a study of prehistoric intoxicants throughout North America specifically In this study Sean Rafferty fills significant gaps in existing research with a focus on native cultures of North America and holistic coverage of intoxicants by type Importantly Rafferty anchors his investigation in an easily overlooked question why did early humans use intoxicants in the first place Rafferty begins by discussing the origins of intoxicants and their role in rituals medicine and recreation Subsequent chapters turn to specific intoxicants hallucinogens stimulants alcohol and tobacco making ample use of illustrations across disciplines weaving a tapestry of culture ritual medicine botany artifact and history All the while Rafferty explores the societal significance of narcotics stimulants and hallucinogens on prehistoric North American cultures While Native Intoxicants of North America focuses specifically on Native cultures the author's analysis provides the foundation for a valuable broader discussion that in a world where few human behaviors are universal experiencing altered states of consciousness is one that transcends culture and time

Matthew G. Looper, 2010-01-01 Winner Association for Latin American Art Book Award 2010 The Maya of Mexico and Central America have performed ritual dances for more than two millennia Dance is still an essential component of religious experience today serving as a medium for communication with the supernatural During the Late Classic period AD 600 900 dance assumed additional importance in Maya royal courts through an association with feasting and gift exchange These performances allowed rulers to forge political alliances and demonstrate their control of trade in luxury goods The aesthetic values embodied in these performances were closely tied to Maya social structure expressing notions of gender rank and status Dance was thus not simply entertainment but was fundamental to ancient Maya notions of social religious and political identity Using an innovative interdisciplinary approach Matthew Looper examines several types of data relevant to ancient Maya dance including hieroglyphic texts pictorial images in diverse media and architecture A series of case studies illustrates the application of various analytical methodologies and offers interpretations of the form meaning and social significance of dance performance Although the nuances of movement in Maya dances are impossible to recover Looper demonstrates that a wealth of other data survives which allows a detailed consideration of many aspects of performance To Be Like Gods thus provides the first comprehensive interpretation of the role of dance in ancient Maya society and also serves as a model for comparative research in the archaeology of performance Bibliographic Guide to Latin American Studies Benson Latin American Collection, 1988
