French Romance, Medieval Sweden and the Europeanisation of Culture Sofia Lodén, 2021 The adaptation of French texts into medieval Swedish reveals the progress of a Europe wide literary culture Translations of French romances into other vernaculars in the Middle Ages have sometimes been viewed as less important versions of prestigious sources rather than in their place as part of a broader range of complex and wider European text traditions This consideration of how French romance was translated rewritten and interpreted in medieval Sweden focuses on the wider context It examines four major texts which appear in both languages Le Chevalier au lion and its Swedish translation Herr Ivan Le Conte de Floire et Blanche flor and Flores och Blanze flor Valentin et Sansnom the original French text has been lost but the tale has survived in the prose version Valentin et Orson and the Swedish text Namnl s och Valentin and Paris et Vienne and the fragmentary Swedish version Riddar Paris och jungfru Vienna Each is analysed through the lens of different themes female characters children animals and masculinity The author argues that French romance made a major contribution to the Europeanisation of medieval culture whilst also playing a key role in the formation of a national literature in Sweden

Roman de Silence Heldris (de Cornuälle.), 1999 This bilingual edition based on a

reexamination of the Old French manuscript makes Silence available to specialists and students in various fields of literature to those in women's studies and most important to everyone who loves a first rate story French Romance of the Later Middle Ages Rosalind Brown-Grant, 2008-11-13 Whilst French romances of the twelfth and thirteenth centuries have long enjoyed a privileged place in the literary history of France romances from the later middle ages have been largely neglected by modern scholars despite their central role in the chivalric culture of the day In particular although this genre has been seen as providing a forum within which ideas about masculine and feminine roles were debated and prescribed little work has been done on the gender ideology of texts from the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries This study seeks to fill this gap in the scholarship by analysing how the views of gender found in earlier romances were reassessed and reshaped in the texts produced in the moralising intellectual environment of the later medieval period In order to explore these topics this book discusses fifteen historico realist prose romances written in the century from 1390 many of which were commissioned at the court of Burgundy It addresses key issues in recent studies of gender in medieval culture including the construction of chivalric masculinity the representation of adolescent desire and the social and sexual roles of husbands and wives In addition to offering close readings of these texts it shows how the romances of the period were informed by ideas about gender which circulated in contemporary works such as manuals of chivalry moral treatises and marriage sermons It thus aims not only to provide the first in depth study of this little known area of French literary history but also to question the critical consensus on the role of gender in medieval romance that has arisen from an exclusive focus on earlier works in the genre

Medieval French on the Move Leah Tether, Patrick Moran, Anne Salamon, 2025-03-17 When Keith Busby published his field shaping Codex and Context in 2002 the work was referred to as groundbreaking and monumental It prompted scholars of medieval literature to return to manuscripts in their droves However Busby's Codex and Context would also enact another more gradual movement His formulation of the term medieval Francophonia to describe the presence power and effect of French outside France would filter steadily into academic enquiry The term and concept are now widely recognised and applied in global scholarship including in multiple major projects dedicated to the topic This volume brings together a series of cutting edge studies of medieval Francophonia covering in one place and for the first time the fullest scope of the concept's remit with contributions on history historiography language literature culture society and authority At the same time as offering a timely contribution to the field this volume pays tribute to Busby's life work not only to pioneer medieval Francophonia but also and moreover to encourage the study of the medieval through material philology Each of the studies here written by Busby's friends and colleagues thus roots its approach in a material context Britain in Medieval French Literature P. Rickard, 1968 A comprehensive 1956 study of French and Provençal literature of the medieval period in terms of its connections with the British Isles

Rewriting Medieval French Literature Leah Tether, Keith Busby, 2021-07-05 Jane H M Taylor is one of the world's foremost scholars of rewriting or récriture Her focus has been on literature in medieval and Renaissance France but rewriting including continuation translation and adaptation lies at the heart of literary traditions in all vernaculars This book explores both the interdisciplinarity of rewriting and Taylor's remarkable contribution to its study The rewriting and reinterpretation of narratives across chronological social and/or linguistic boundaries represents not only a crucial feature of text transmission but also a locus of cultural exchange Taylor has shown that the adaptation of material to conform to the expectations values or literary tastes of a different audience can reveal important information regarding the acculturation and reception of medieval texts In recent years numerous scholars across disciplines have thus turned to this field of enquiry This collection of studies dedicated to the rewriting of medieval French literature from the twelfth to the twenty-first centuries by Taylor's friends colleagues and former students offers not only a fitting tribute to Taylor's career but also a timely consolidation of the very latest research in the field which will be vital for all scholars of medieval rewriting With contributions from Jessica Taylor Keith Busby Leah Tether Logan E Whalen Mireille S Guy Christine Ferlampin Acher Ad Putter Anne Salamon Patrick Moran Nathalie Koble Bart Besamusca Frank Brandsma Richard Trachsler Carol J Chase Maria Colombo Timelli Laura Chuhan Campbell Joan Tasker Grimbert Jean Claude Mhlethaler Michelle Szkilnik Thomas Hinton Elizabeth Archibald Waldef, 2020 The first ever English translation of Le Roman de Waldef a significant early thirteenth-century representative of the French literature of early medieval England and a fast-moving romance set against a history of pre-Conquest England Thinking Medieval Romance Katherine C. Little, Nicola McDonald, 2018-10-17 Medieval romances with their magic fountains brave knights and beautiful maidens have come to stand for the Middle Ages more generally This close connection between the medieval and the romance has had consequences for popular conceptions of the Middle Ages an idealized fantasy of chivalry and hierarchy and also for our understanding of romances as always already archaic part of a half-forgotten past And yet romances were one of the most influential and long-lasting innovations of the medieval period To emphasize their novelty is to see the resources medieval people had for thinking about their contemporary concern and controversies whether social order Jewish-Christian relations the Crusades the connectivity of the Mediterranean women's roles as mothers and how to write a national past This volume takes up the challenge to think romance investigating the various ways that romances imagine reflect and describe the challenges of the medieval world Narrative Invention in Twelfth-century French Romance Matilda Tomaryn Bruckner, 1980 Blindness and Therapy in Late Medieval French and Italian Poetry Julie Singer, 2011 This book argues that late medieval love poets from Petrarch to Machaut and

Charles d'Orlans exploit scientific models as a broad framework within which to redefine the limits of the lyric subject and his body. Just as humoral theory depends upon principles of likes and contraries in order to heal, poetry makes possible a parallel therapeutic system in which verbal oppositions and substitutions counter or rewrite received medical wisdom. The specific case of blindness, a disability that according to the theories of love that predominated in the late medieval West, foreclosed the possibility of love, serves as a laboratory in which to explore poets' circumvention of the logical limits of contemporary medical theory. Reclaiming the power of remedy from physicians, these late medieval French and Italian poets prompt us to rethink not only the relationship between scientific and literary authority at the close of the middle ages but more broadly speaking the very notion of therapy. From publisher's website: Medieval Romance John Stevens, 2025-05-08

The subjects of medieval romance are the great and permanent concerns of the human mind. A literature is best approached by newcomers through its major achievements; the author of this book, originally published in 1973, maintains. The book's discussion centres on the romances of Chaucer and Chrétien de Troyes and on such texts as Sir Gawain and the Green Knight, the Roman de la Rose and Malory's Morte d'Arthur. The book's introductory chapters stress the continuity between medieval and later literature. Love and Death in Medieval French and Occitan Courtly Literature Simon Gaunt, 2006-02-16

Some of medieval culture's most arresting images and stories inextricably associate love and death. Thus the troubadour Jaufre Rudel dies in the arms of the countess of Tripoli, having loved her from afar without ever having seen her. Or in Marie de France's Chevrefoil, Tristan and Iseult's fatal love is hauntingly symbolized by the fatally entwined honeysuckle and hazel. And who could forget the ethereal spectacle of the Damoisele of Escalot's body carried to Camelot on a supernatural funerary boat with a letter on her breast explaining how her unrequited love for Lancelot killed her. Medieval literature is fascinated with the idea that love may be a fatal affliction. Indeed, it is frequently suggested that true love requires sacrifice: that you must be ready to die for love and in love. Love, in other words, is represented sometimes explicitly as a form of martyrdom, a notion that is repeatedly reinforced by courtly literature's borrowing of religious vocabulary and imagery. The paradigm of the martyr to love has, of course, remained compelling in the early modern and modern period. This book seeks to explore what is at stake in medieval literature's preoccupation with love's martyrdom. Informed by modern theoretical approaches, particularly Lacanian psychoanalysis and Jacques Derrida's work on ethics, it offers new readings of a wide range of French and Occitan courtly texts from the twelfth and thirteenth centuries and argues that a new secular ethics of desire emerges from courtly literature because of its fascination with death. This book also examines the interplay between lyric and romance in courtly literary culture and shows how courtly literature's predilection for sacrificial desire imposes a repressive sex/gender system that may then be subverted by fictional women and queers who either fail to die on cue or who die in troublesome and disruptive ways.
