Ambivalent Journey Richard C. Jones, 2022-09-13 The changing political and economic relationships between Mexico and the United States and the concurrent U S debate over immigration policy and practice demand new data on migration and its economic effects In this innovative study Richard C Jones analyzes migration patterns from two subregions of north central Mexico Coahuila and Zacatecas to the United States He analyzes and contrasts the characteristics of the two migrant populations and interprets the economic impacts of migration upon both home of migration upon both home areas Jones s findings refute some common assumptions about Mexican migration while providing a strong model for further research Jones s study focuses on the ways in which U S migration affects the lives of families in these two subregions Migrants from Zacatecas have traditionally come from rural areas and have gone to California and Illinois Migrants from Coahuila on the other hand usually come from urban areas and have almost exclusively preferred locations in nearby Texas The different motivations of both groups for migrating and the different economic and social effects upon their home areas realized by migrating form the core of this book The comparison also lends the book its uniqueness since no other study has made such an in depth comparison of two areas Jones addresses the basic dichotomy of structuralists who maintain that dependency and disinvestment are the rule for families and communities in sending areas and functionalists who believe that autonomy and reinvestment are the case of migrants and their families in home regions Jones finds that much of the primary literature is based on uneven and largely outdated data that leans heavily on two sending states Jalisco and Michoacan His fresh analysis shows that communities and regions of Mexico rather than families only account for differing migration patterns and differing social and economic results of these patterns Jones s study will be of value not only to scholars and practitioners working in the field of Mexican migration but also for its innovative methodology to anthropologists sociologists political scientists and historians whose interests include human migration patterns in any part of the world

Constructed Movements Ragini Shah, 2024-12-03 A free ebook version of this title is available through Luminos University of California Press s Open Access publishing program Visit www.luminosoa.org to learn more At once theoretically sophisticated and poignantly written Constructed Movements centers stories from communities in Mexico profoundly affected by emigration to the United States to show how migration extracts resources along racial lines Ragini Shah chronicles how three interrelated dynamics the maldistribution of public resources the exploitation of migrant labor and the US immigration enforcement regime entrench the necessity of migration as a strategy for survival in Mexico She also highlights the alternative visions elaborated by migrant community organizations that seek to end the conditions that force migration Recognizing that reform without recompense will never right an unjust migratory system Shah concludes with a forceful call for the US and Mexican governments to make abolitionist investments and reparative compensation to directly counteract this legacy of extraction

The Health of Aging Hispanics Jacqueline L. Angel,Keith E. Whitfield,2007-08-06 The emergence of the Hispanic population in the United States and the increasing profile of Latin America on the North and South American continents have raised the profile of Latino issues in the American consciousness Much of this attention however has revolved around trends in culture art food and music or pathological concerns about poverty crime drugs and immigration At best the scholarly and policy assessments of the implications of the impact of Latinos in the United States revolve around Mexican Americans Puerto Ricans and Central Americans aswellasthechildrenofanolderCubanpopulation andtheirstruggles toachieveameasureofeducation healthcare employment andcivilrights What have not been adequately addressed are the demographic trends affecting Latinos in the United States Mexico and Latin America particularly the aging of the Hispanic population and its resultant health and long term care needs That Latinos are living longer and shifting from a youthful population to an increasingly older cohort is little known except among the small cadre of Hispanic gerontologists Ironically this invisibility of aging Hispanics is juxtaposed to the almost picked response of the U S media and public toward the aging of the general U S population and the social and political controversies over Social Security Medicare and health care costs The policy debates of an aging U S population as a whole arise from substantial research and policy analysis a level of attention not seen with regard to the aging of the Hispanic population

The Making of Citizens Bryan Roberts, 2020-11-25 Originally published as Cities of Peasants this highly acclaimed account of the expansion of capitalism in the developing world has now been extensively rewritten and updated Focusing on Latin America Bryan Roberts traces the evolution of developing societies and their economies to the present Taking account of the move towards more open economies a shrinking of the state and various transitions towards democracies he shows how urban growth has produced new patterns of social stratification creating opportunities for social mobility but doing little to decrease income inequality or political and social pressures Underlying social changes have broadened the practice of citizenship in developing countries limiting authoritarian rule but within a context of entrenched social inequalities and persisting political instability This book conveys both the flavour of life in the cities of the third world and the immediacy of their problems

The Global Governance of Food Sara R. Curran, April Linton, Abigail Cooke, Andrew Schrank, 2013-09-13 Food provides a particularly exciting and grounded research site for understanding the mechanisms governing global transactions in the 21st century While food is intimately and fundamentally related to ecological and human well being food products now travel far flung trade routes to reach us International trade in food has tripled in value and quadrupled in volume since 1960 and tracing the production movement transformation and consumption of food necessitates research that situates localities within global networks and facilitates our capacity to see the trees and the forest by zooming from the global to the local and back to the global Our need for food is a constant how we acquire food is a variable and the production commercialization and consumption of food therefore offer an invaluable window onto the globalization of the world we inhabit Food provides an ideal site for answering the fundamental questions of governance of central concern to globalization debates This book presents recent and interdisciplinary scholarship about the variety of mechanisms governing global food systems and their impacts on human and environmental well being This book was previously published as a special issue of Globalizations
