Internationalization, Market Power and Consumer Welfare Yves Bourdet, 2024-10-01 In the years prior to this book being originally published in 1992 the study of industrial economics had been dominated by the USA While there was a fund of theoretical and empirical knowledge relating to the US experience this is not always relevant in the context of Europe With its considerable national market the USA developed competition policies that differ from those in the smaller economies of European countries This collection of essays looks at the market behaviour of an economy more open to international competition The industrial organization of Sweden provides the ideal representation of smaller economies that can be applied to the other economies of western Europe The contributors apply different analytical approaches to assess direct and indirect forms of market power Some papers draw on econometric cross sectional models exploring the scope of market power and the role of international competition Others look at specific markets investigating the formation of market power its costs to consumers and the role of lobbying groups and the political sphere case studies include the domestic car white goods pharmaceutical goods food textile and air transport markets The book also contains papers that examine the role of competition policy towards restrictive practices and mergers in curbing market power and promoting economic efficiency This book will be of interest to those studying industrial economics and international business and marketing Antitrust Policy and Interest-Group Politics William F. Shughart, 1990-04-09 This groundbreaking study is the first to apply an analytical model derived from the interest group theory of regulation to the study of antitrust law and policy The application of this model which stresses that government intervention in the economy will always benefit some political groups at the expense of others to the analysis of antitrust enables Shughart both to identify important trends in the antitrust arena and demonstrate which groups have benefited most from antitrust legislation His analysis clearly shows that consumer welfare is often not enhanced by antitrust suits or legislation Rather well organized private interest groups have tended to benefit more even in cases where consumer welfare is the stated goal of legislation or policy Divided into three sections the volume begins by discussing normative and positive theories of antitrust The author provides an overview of the origins of antitrust law and policy and introduces the interest group theory of government The second section explores the various private interests that impinge on antitrust policy the business community the antitrust bureaucracy Congress the judiciary and the antitrust bar

Finally Shughart examines the political economy of antitrust He shows how antitrust can be used to subvert competition and offers suggestions for reform in the realm of interest group politics Students of economics and business as well as professional economists corporate lawyers legislators and business consultants will find important new insights into the direction taken by antitrust policy during the last few decades Reasoned Administration and Democratic Legitimacy Jerry L. Mashaw, 2018-09-27 Explains how administrative government maintains mutual respect among citizens legitimates administrative government under law and supports a realistic vision of democracy Criminal Courts Aaron Kupchik, 2019-01-15 The social organization of criminal courts is the theme of this collection of articles The volume provides contributions to three levels of social organization in criminal courts 1 the macro level involving external economic political and social forces Joachim J Savelsberg Raymond Michalowski Mary E Vogel John Hagan and Ron Levi 2 the meso level consisting of formal structures informal cultural norms and supporting agencies in an interlocking organizational network Malcolm M Feeley Lawrence Mohr Jo Dixon Jeffrey T Ulmer and John H Kramer and 3 the micro level consisting of interactional orders that emerge from the social discourses and categorizations in multiple layers of bargaining and negotiation processes Lisa Frohmann Aaron Kupchik Michael McConville and Chester Mirsky Bankole A Cole An editorial introduction ties these levels together relating them to a Weberian sociology of law
