

A woman with long dark hair, wearing a white short-sleeved button-down shirt and blue jeans, is smiling and looking off to the side. She is holding a dark blue bowl filled with a soup or noodle dish, topped with green onions, yellow and red peppers, and white dumplings. A pair of wooden chopsticks is in the bowl. The background is a blurred interior with a green and white striped pattern.

Hong Kong Connections Meaghan Morris, Siu Leung Li, Stephen Ching-kiu Chan, 2005-10-01 Since the 1960s Hong Kong cinema has helped to shape one of the world's most popular cultural genres action cinema Hong Kong action films have proved popular over the decades with audiences worldwide and they have seized the imaginations of filmmakers working in many different cultural traditions and styles How do we account for this appeal which changes as it crosses national borders Hong Kong Connections brings leading film scholars together to explore the uptake of Hong Kong cinema in Japan Korea India Australia France and the US as well as its links with Taiwan Singapore and the Chinese mainland In the process this collective study examines diverse cultural contexts for action cinema's popularity and the problems involved in the transnational study of globally popular forms suggesting that in order to grasp the history of Hong Kong action cinema's influence we need to bring out the differences as well as the links that constitute popularity Racial Ambiguity in Asian American Culture Jennifer Ann Ho, 2015-05-12 The sheer diversity of the Asian American populace makes them an ambiguous racial category Indeed the 2010 U S Census lists twenty four Asian ethnic groups lumping together under one heading people with dramatically different historical backgrounds and cultures In Racial Ambiguity in Asian American Culture Jennifer Ann Ho shines a light on the hybrid and indeterminate aspects of race revealing ambiguity to be paramount to a more nuanced understanding both of race and of what it means to be Asian American Exploring a variety of subjects and cultural artifacts Ho reveals how Asian American subjects evince a deep racial ambiguity that unmoors the concept of race from any fixed or finite understanding For example the book examines the racial ambiguity of Japanese American nisei Yoshiko Nakamura deLeon who during World War II underwent an abrupt transition from being an enemy alien to an assimilating American via the Mixed Marriage Policy of 1942 It looks at the blogs of Korean Taiwanese and Vietnamese

Americans who were adopted as children by white American families and have conflicted feelings about their honorary white status And it discusses Tiger Woods the most famous mixed race Asian American whose description of himself as Cablinasian reflecting his background as Black Asian Caucasian and Native American perfectly captures the ambiguity of racial classifications Race is an abstraction that we treat as concrete a construct that reflects only our desires fears and anxieties Jennifer Ho demonstrates in Racial Ambiguity in Asian American Culture that seeing race as ambiguous puts us one step closer to a potential antidote to racism

Contested Ideas of Regionalism in Asia Baogang

He,2016-09-13 Deepening regionalism in Asia demands new leadership Strong elites who are committed to a supranational identity are a minimum requirement of successful regionalism Regional leaders are increasingly seen as a new set of leaders in Europe Currently Asian regional leaders largely come from the diplomacy community or trade and economic sectors Yet further regionalization demands a new type of leadership from civil society and citizens In this context it is important to cultivate new regional leadership through the development of regional citizenship This book examines contested ideas of regionalism in Asia with a particular focus on two competing ideas of pan Asianism and Pacificism It also identifies a new trend and contestation the fundamental shift from a civilization understanding of regionalism to a technocratic and functional understanding of regionalism in the form of regulatory regionalism It also examines the other contested imaginations of regionalism in Asia including elitist versus participatory approaches to regionalism and democracy centric versus nationalism centric approaches to regionalism
