

MEMBERSHIP—The American Medical Association has a membership of over 50,000 physicians and surgeons, representing more than 90 per cent of the medical profession in the United States. The Association is organized into 100 local chapters, each of which is affiliated with one of the 50 state medical associations. The Association's purpose is to advance the science and art of medicine, to promote the health of the people, and to protect the public interest. The Association's activities include the publication of the Journal, the holding of annual and regional conferences, and the maintenance of a library of medical books and journals. The Association also maintains a system of medical education, which includes the granting of fellowships and scholarships to students and residents. The Association's financial resources are derived from the contributions of its members and from the sale of the Journal and other publications.

The American Medical Association is a non-profit organization, and its assets are held in trust for the benefit of the medical profession and the public. The Association's financial statements are audited annually by an independent accounting firm. The Association's headquarters are located in Chicago, Illinois, and its regional offices are located in major cities throughout the United States. The Association's website is <http://www.ama-assn.org>. The Association's telephone number is (312) 462-5000. The Association's fax number is (312) 462-5001.
