Love Letters A Womans Story:

Love Letters Michelle Janning, 2018-06-14 In today's world of Tinder and texting do we write and save love letters anymore Are we more likely to save a screenshot of a text exchange or a box of paper letters from a lover How might these different ways to store a love letter make us feel Sociologist Michelle Janning's Love Letters Saving Romance in the Digital Age offers a new twist on the study of love letters what people do with them and whether digital or paper format matters Through stories a rich review of past research and her own survey findings Janning uncovers whether and how people from different groups including gender and age approach their love letter curatorial practices in an era when digitization of communication is nearly ubiquitous She investigates the importance of space and time showing how our connection to the material world and our attraction to nostalgia matter in actions as seemingly small and private as saving storing stumbling upon or even burning a love letter Janning provides a framework for understanding why someone may prefer digital or paper love letters and what that preference says about a person's access and attachment to powerful cultural values such as individualization taking time in a hectic world longevity privacy and keeping cherished things in a safe place Ultimately Janning contends the cultural values that tell us how romantic love should be defined are more powerful than the format our love letters take

The Secret History of Domesticity Michael McKeon, 2006-12-06 Taking English culture as its representative sample The Secret History of Domesticity asks how the modern notion of the public private relation emerged in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries Treating that relation as a crucial instance of the modern division of knowledge Michael McKeon narrates its pre history along with that of its essential component domesticity This narrative draws upon the entire spectrum of English people's experience At the most public extreme are political developments like the formation of civil society over against the state the rise of contractual thinking and the devolution of absolutism from monarch to individual Subject The middle range of experience takes in the influence of Protestant and scientific thought the printed publication of the private the conceptualization of virtual publics society public opinion the market and the capitalization of production the decline of the domestic economy and the increase in the sexual division of labor The most private pole of experience involves the privatization of marriage the family and the household and the complex entanglement of femininity interiority Subjectivity and sexuality McKeon accounts for how the relationship between public and private experience first became intelligible as a variable interaction of distinct modes of being not a static dichotomy but a tool to think with Richly illustrated with nearly 100 images including paintings engravings woodcuts and a representative selection of architectural floor plans for domestic interiors this volume reads graphic forms to emphasize how susceptible the public private relation was to concrete and spatial representation McKeon is similarly attentive to how literary forms evoked a tangible sense of public private relations among them figurative imagery allegorical narration parody the author character reader dialectic aesthetic distance and free indirect discourse He also finds a structural analogue for the emergence of the modern public private relation in the conjunction of what contemporaries called the secret history and the domestic novel A capacious and synthetic historical investigation The Secret History of Domesticity exemplifies how the methods of literary interpretation and historical analysis can inform and enrich one another Every Woman's

Writing Love Katharine Ann Jensen, 1995 In this compelling new addition to Sandra M Gilbert's Ad Feminam Women and Literature series Katharine Ann Jensen examines the cultural form of the love letter and its intersection with the novel in the works of seventeenth and eighteenth century French women writers Traditionally French literary history has focused on eighteenth century male writers Rousseau and Laclos as the master artists of the epistolary novel That emphasis on one century one gender and one epistolary form the novel obscures the history of women's writing in France In the seventeenth century the love letter was viewed as a feminine literary form in which a woman's passionate and emotional nature found its logical expression Such emotional writing was criticized for its structural and grammatical imperfections rendering it in the eyes of men invalid as true literary material However men often wrote under female pseudonyms composing letters of seduction and betrayal that were published as true accounts Jensen contends that men disguised their words as women's words because writing as women allowed them to experiment with narrative fiction at a time when men's writing was rigidly defined by classical rhetoric She further argues that men were able to moderate women's linguistic strengths by limiting their epistolary expertise to a social rather than literary practice thereby maintaining literature as an almost exclusively male province Jensen argues for a tradition of women's writing by examining both the love letters and novels of such writers as Desjardins Ferrand Graffigny Riccoboni and Lespinasse In her novel Les D sordres de l amour Desjardins Madame de Villegieu creates an ambitious letter writing heroine Through an analysis of the textual similarities between the heroine's letters and Desjardins's personal love letters to her unfaithful lover Jensen concludes that Desjardins rewrites her own unfortunate epistolary relationship Jensen draws similar conclusions from an examination of the personal letters of Ferrand in relation to her novel Histoire des amours de Cl ante et de B lise In order to chart the legacy of seventeenth century feminine epistolarity Jensen goes on to consider the works of eighteenth century French women writers Like Desjardins's novel Graffigny's Lettres d une P ruvienne and Riccoboni's Lettres de Mistress Fanni Butlerd present letter writing heroines who overturn the conventions of seduction and betrayal in order to claim their independence and desire to write This desire correlates to Graffigny's and Riccoboni's own writing ambitions thereby asserting the ability of women to write self consciously rather than emotionally and to create narrative fiction rather than cyclical letters of love and suffering Jensen demonstrates that these assertions constitute a significant break with seventeenth century ideas about feminine letter writing that inextricably bind women to a supposedly natural language of sexual and literary disempowerment This important and insightful book will prove a valuable addition to the libraries of scholars in French seventeenth and eighteenth century studies feminist studies epistolary fiction and novel and narrative studies

F. Montgomery, Charles Dwyer, 1901 Confessional Politics Irene Gammel, 1999 The premise of Confessional Politics is that in this confessional age telling all is in From a unique variety of perspectives and angles the essays in this collection explore the association of confession with femininity they examine its function as a gender specific discourse as they probe its many feminized genres and subgenres Confessional Politics investigates the creative and strategic ways in which women shape the telling of their sexual stories in order to resist and negotiate the confessional practices designed to position them in conventional sexual frameworks Investigating the confessional politics of traditional forms of social life writing including erotic diaries journals letters and confessional fiction this book significantly expands its focus beyond conventional forms to include practices affecting mass readerships and audiences The collection addresses provocative general topics talk shows sexual harassment sexual abuse sexuality self help books and cross dressing as well as expressive works such as contemporary Canadian women's poetry lesbian fiction performance art Anne Frank's recently released complete diary and memoirs The Academy, 1901 The Literary World, 1901 Lacan and Contemporary Film Todd McGowan, 2020-09-08 This unique volume collects a series of essays that link new developments in Lacanian psychoanalytic theory and recent trends in contemporary cinema Though Lacanian theory has long had a privileged place in the analysis of film film theory has tended to ignore some of Lacan's most important ideas As a result Lacanian film theory has never properly integrated the disruptive and troubling aspects of the filmic experience that result from the encounter with the Real that this experience makes possible Many contemporary theorists emphasize the importance of the encounter with the Real in Lacan's thought but rarely in discussions of film By bringing the encounter with the Real into the dialogue of film theory the contributors to this volume present a new version of Lacan to the world of film studies These essays bring this rediscovered Lacan to bear on contemporary cinema through analysis of a wide variety of films including Memento Eyes Wide Shut Breaking the Waves and Fight Club The films discussed here demand a turn to Lacanian theory because they emphasize the disruptive role of the Real and of jouissance in the experience of the human subject There is a growing number of films in contemporary cinema that speak to film's power to challenge and disturb the complacency of spectators and the essays in Lacan and Contemporary Film analyze some of these films and bring their power to light Because of its dual focus on developments in Lacanian theory and in contemporary film this collection serves as both an accessible introduction to current Lacanian film theory and an introduction to the study of contemporary cinema Each essay provides an accessible jargon free analysis of one or more important films and at the same time each explains and utilizes key concepts of Lacanian theory The collection stages an encounter between Lacanian theory and contemporary cinema and the result is the enrichment of both The Women with Silver Wings Katherine Sharp Landdeck, 2021-03-30 With the fate of the free world hanging in the balance women pilots went aloft to serve their nation A soaring tale in which at long last these daring World War II pilots gain the credit they deserve Liza Mundy New York Times bestselling author of Code Girls A powerful story of reinvention community and ingenuity born
