Organic Matter in Natural National Science Foundation (United States), 1970 Linking Optical and Chemical Properties of Dissolved Organic Matter in Natural Waters Christopher L. Osburn, Thomas S. Bianchi, 2017-01-17 A substantial increase in the number of studies using the optical properties absorbance and fluorescence of dissolved organic matter DOM as a proxy for its chemical properties in estuaries and the coastal and open ocean has occurred during the last decade We are making progress on finding the actual chemical compounds or phenomena responsible for DOM s optical properties Ultrahigh resolution mass spectrometry in particular has made important progress in making the key connections between optics and chemistry But serious questions remain and the last major special issue on DOM optics and chemistry occurred nearly 10 years ago Controversies remain from the non specific optical properties of DOM that are not linked to discrete sources and sometimes provide conflicting information The use of optics which is relatively easier to employ in synoptic and high resolution sampling to determine chemistry is a critical connection to make and can lead to major advances in our understanding of organic matter cycling in all aquatic ecosystems The contentions and controversies raised by our poor understanding of the linkages between optics and chemistry of DOM are bottlenecks that need to be addressed and overcome

Symposium on Organic Matter in Natural Waters, 1970 Organic Matter in Natural Waters Edited by Donald W. Loach, State University of New York College at Plattsburgh, 1973 Organic geochemistry of natural waters E.M. Thurman, 2012-12-06 This book is written as a reference on organic substances in natural waters and as a supplementary text for graduate students in water chemistry The chapters address five topics amount origin nature geochemistry and characterization of organic carbon Of these topics the main themes are the amount and nature of dissolved organic carbon in natural waters mainly fresh water although seawater is briefly discussed It is hoped that the reader is familiar with organic chemistry but it is not necessary The first part of the book is a general overview of the amount and general nature of dissolved organic carbon Over the past 10 years there has been an exponential increase in knowledge on organic substances in water which is the result of money directed toward the research of organic compounds of new methods of analysis such as gas chromatography and mass spectrometry and most importantly the result of more people working in this field Because of this exponential increase in knowledge there is a need to pull together and summarize the data that has accumulated from many disciplines over the last decade Natural Organic Matter in Water Mika Sillanpää, 2014-10-07 Approximately 77 percent of the freshwater used in the United States comes from surface water sources and is subject to natural organic matter contamination according to the United States Geological Survey This presents a distinct challenge to water treatment engineers An essential resource to the latest breakthroughs in the characterization treatment and removal of natural organic matter NOM from drinking water Natural Organic Matter in Waters Characterization and Treatment Methods focuses on advance filtration and treatment options and processes for reducing disinfection byproducts Based on the author s years of research and field experience this book begins with the characterization of NOM including general parameters isolation and concentration fractionation composition and structural analysis and biological testing This is followed by removal methods such as inorganic coagulants polyelectrolytes and composite coagulants Electrochemical and membranes removal methods such as electrocoagulation electrochemical oxidation microfiltration and ultrafiltration nanofiltration and membrane fouling Covers conventional as well as advanced NOM removal methods Includes characterization methods of NOM Explains removal methods such as removal by coagulation electrochemical advanced oxidation and integrated methods Fluorescence of dissolved organic matter in natural waters Adrian McDonald,1998 Symposium on Organic Matter in Natural Waters Held at the University of Alaska, September 2- 4 1968 ,1970 Organic Matter in Natural Waters Symposium on Organic Matter in Natural Waters, University of Alaska,1968,University of Alaska (College),University of Alaska. Symposium on Organic Matter in Natural Waters , Papers presented at a symposium held at the University of Alaska, College, AK, September 2 - 4 1968 Hood DW Ed,1970 Complexation of trace metals in natural waters C.J. Kramer,J.C. Duinker,2013-11-11 It is presently well recognized that total concentrations of trace elements in any environmental compartment supply insufficient information to understand important phenomena The distinction and separate analysis of specific chemical species are essential for understanding cycles in the aquatic environment involving identification and quantification of sources transport pathways distributions and sinks or in the area of interactions between trace elements and organisms to understand uptake distribution excretion mechanisms and effects In the past various ways have been developed to determine the nature and extent of complexation of trace elements in natural systems Approaches have been followed along very different lines These have not always been fully appreciated by specialists working in even related fields of complexation research The first International Symposium on the Complexation of Trace metals in Natural Waters was held at the Netherlands Institute for Sea Research NIOZ Texel the Netherlands from 2 6 May 1983 The scientific programme was planned by the chief organizers Drs C J M Kramer and J C Duinker NIOZ together with Prof Dr H W Nurnberg Kernforschungsanlage Julich Federal Republic of Germany and Dr M Branica Rudjer Boskovic Institute Zagreb Yugoslavia Sedimentary Rocks as a Source of Organic Matter to Natural Waters Sarah E. Photoinduced processes caused by natural sunlight are key functions for sustaining all living organisms through production and transformation of organic matter OM in the biosphere Production of hydrogen peroxide H_2O_2 from OM is a primary step of photoinduced processes because H_2O_2 acts as strong reductant and oxidant It is potentially important in many aquatic reactions also in association with photosynthesis Allochthonous and autochthonous dissolved organic matter DOM can be involved into several photoinduced or biological processes DOM subsequently undergoes several physical chemical photoinduced and biological processes which can be affected by global warming This book is uniquely structured to overview some vital issues such as DOM H_2O_2 and ROOH HO Degradation of DOM CDOM FDOM Photosynthesis Chlorophyll Metal complexation and Global warming as well as their mutual interrelationships based on updated scientific results
