Prescriptions explores the politics of dealing with health inequities through targeting pharmaceuticals at specific racial groups based on the idea that they are genetically different Drawing on the introduction of BiDil to treat heart failure among African Americans this book contends that while racialized pharmaceuticals are ostensibly about fostering life they also raise thorny questions concerning the biologization of race the reproduction of inequality and the economic exploitation of the racial body Engaging the concept of biopower in an examination of race genetics and pharmaceuticals Racial Prescriptions will appeal to sociologists anthropologists and scholars of science and technology studies with interests in medicine health bioscience inequality and racial politics Psychology & Christianity Gary R. sequences and negotiations that fulfill vital functions for the organism at macro meso and micro scales Human abilities to distill and extract the living world into highly refined foods and medicines however have created substances far more potent than their counterparts in our historical evolution Many of these substances also lack certain accompanying proteins enzymes and alkaloids that otherwise aid digestion or protect against side effects in active extracted chemicals Human biology has yet to catch up with human inventions such as supernormal foods and medicines that may flood receptors overwhelming the body's normal satiation mechanisms This volume discusses how biosemioticians can come to terms with these networks of meaning providing a valuable and provocative compendium for semioticians medical researchers and practitioners sociologists cultural theorists bioethicists and scholars investigating the interdisciplinary questions stemming from food and medicine

God's Prescription for Mental Health and Religion E. Rae Harcum, 2010-07-15 The central proposition of God's Prescription for Mental Health and Religion is that the highway to mental health of individuals and of society is God's prescription of selfless devotion and service to others Mental health does not refer to the absence of mental disturbance but rather to feelings of happiness and well being This message represents an integration of psychological and religious thinking both of which say that personal peace and happiness come to those who devote their lives to serving others instead of those who focus their lives on a search for personal pleasure This proposition is supported by rigorous psychological research showing that people who believe in a loving and supportive God do in fact enjoy better mental health This thesis is also supported by the insightful advice of many experts and commentators on social problems and by specific quotations from the Bible So smile if you truly believe your religion
