Critical Reflections on Cities in Southeast Asia Tim Bunnell, Lisa Drummond, Ho, 2021-11-15
Critical Reflections draws together the multi disciplinary research of scholars working in on cities across Southeast Asia The fourteen essays collected in the volume are organised into three thematic sections re conceptualisation competition and intervention Collectively these reflections contribute to and interrogate the expanding urban and regional studies literature The volume constitutes a critical corrective to the existing literature which all too often seeks to diagnose contemporary urban trends everywhere from a small number of mostly Western paradigmatic cases Yet while acknowledging the increasing interconnectedness and shared global orientation of most cities in Southeast Asia the volume is wary of positing an equally generalising regional model Individually these essays attend to the diversity of contemporary urban experiences in Southeast Asia

Realism and Interdependence in Singapore's Foreign Policy Narayanan Ganesan, 2005-10-18
Singapore's existence and success derive in part from its achievements in the domestic political arena and in part from the skilful management of a well defined foreign policy with clearly identifiable goals and issues A visible core of realist self reliance is layered with the demands of a competitive trading state that requires a liberal international trading regime Hence both competitive and cooperative philosophies support Singapore's foreign policy This text charts the philosophical underpinning of Singapore's foreign policy output and the institutions responsible for it and examines the importance of economic and defence diplomacy that are central to Singapore's foreign policy output It gives particular attention to the two most important regional bilateral relationships with Indonesia and Malaysia and how relations with its adjacent neighbours have influenced Singapore's foreign policy Combining first hand research with excellent analysis this volume provides a much needed report on the survival of a small state in the globalizing world

Singapore River Stephen Dobbs, 2013-11-11 For most of its modern history to speak of Singapore was to speak of the Singapore River physical centre of the city and site of the greater part of the colony's entrepot trade The river has been transformed over the last 25 years from a polluted industrial sewer choked with traffic to a clean placid waterway that forms the centrepiece of Singapore's financial civic and entertainment districts This transformation symbolizes the city state's efforts to remake itself for the 21st century Stephen Dobbs sets out the history of this waterway and of the people who made it their home and workplace He describes the tidal swamp in the early days of the British settlement where merchants ignored Raffles' much vaunted city plan and built their businesses on the limited high ground along the marshy riverbanks Later even as the long distance shipping moved to new port facilities elsewhere on the island the river remained the base for a large regional trade and boatmen and businessmen struggled to cope with silting over crowding and bridges that were too low to be passed at high tide Looking at the post war years Dobbs zeroes in on the boatmen who carried goods between the godownse or warehouses along the river and the freighters lying at anchor in the roads Despite its pollution the river remained home to a vital community of coolies and tally clerks and the tumultuous urban life that swirled around them Today the waterfront community has been relocated The shophouses and warehouses along the river are now chic cafes and upmarket restaurants fish have returned to the Singapore River and urban dwellers stroll on walks along the river's edge Blending social history geography economic history and urban studies this book will be of interest to anyone wishing to understand Singapore's many transformations during the past two centuries Responding to Globalization Selvaraj Velayutham, 2007 Investigates the Singapore Government's approach to the construction of national identity This book focuses on the global national nexus the tensions between the necessity to embrace the global to ensure economic survival yet needing a committed population to support the perpetuation of the nation state and its economic success Singapore Perspectives 2009: The Heart Of The Matter Tarn How Tan, 2009-06-02 The Singapore Perspectives series is a yearly publication that provides critical analysis of emerging trends and issues Singapore faces in terms of social economic and political development It is a quick and essential reference for understanding the broad policy discussions that animate thought leaders policy makers and the public in the country during the immediate period or that are likely to do so in the short and medium term In this volume contributors take an in depth look at four topics of pertinent interest to Singapore's mid to long term future and offer some radical ideas for Singaporeans consideration They are Can Singaporeans Afford a High Cost Singapore Can Singaporeans Remain Rooted Can Singapore Preserve Its Hub Status Can Government Do Less and Singaporeans More Contributors include Member of Parliament Inderjit Singh playwright and law academic Eleanor Wong and former president of the Law Society of Singapore Philip Jeyaretnam Co published by the think tank the Institute of Policy Studies Singapore this is a useful publication for those with an interest in understanding the governance challenges facing a small highly globalised economy and nation state or those who want a quick feel of the pulse of Singapore Insights On

Contributed by the who's who of Singapore's government, business and academia circles, they provide diverse viewpoints over state-society relations, governing principles, electoral politics, foreign policy among other important issues. Will consensus or contest secure Singapore's future? Should pragmatism be retained as Singapore's governing philosophy? What if the nation-state is no longer the key organisational unit of the international community? What if Singapore has to choose between China and the United States? What if Singapore becomes a two or multi-party system? This volume explores a range of possible answers to these questions and more.

Singapore's Park System Master Planning Raffaella Sini, 2019-04-23 This book traces the evolution of Singapore's parks system from colonial to present times. Further, it contextualizes the design and planning of parks in the general discourse on western and eastern traditions, early twentieth-century western conceptions imported during colonialism, modernism, postmodernism, and the contemporary ecological debate. Park system planning products respond to national policies and result in structural urban elements and a range of park types. Global western ideology and local issues have influenced park system planning and the physical design of individual parks over time. However, in Singapore, the eastern literature has not addressed the development of parks and urban green spaces in terms of historical perspective. The publication reveals the interrelations between visual representations and changing political ideologies. Singapore's system of public parks is shown to represent an iconography created by the state. Its set of constructed narratives elucidates on the potential social, cultural, and environmental roles of public parks. However, Singapore's park system presents a novel paradigm for expanding Asian cities characterized by evolving urban imaging strategies. In framing Singapore's case study within the broader perspective of eastern applications of western planning and design practices and constructions of nation in post-colonial countries, the manuscript establishes the contribution of the Singaporean model of design and planning of parks to the international debate.

The Hard State, Soft City of Singapore Simone Shu-Yeng Chung, Mike Douglass, 2025-10-01 With Singapore serving as the subject of exploration, The Hard State, Soft City of Singapore explores the purview of imaginative representations of the city. Alongside the physical structures and associated practices that make up our lived environment and conceptualized space engineered into material form by bureaucrats, experts, and commercial interests, a perceptual layer of space is conjured out of people's everyday life experiences. While such imaginative projections may not be as tangible as its functional designations, they are nonetheless equally vital and palpable. The richness of its inhabitants' memories, aspirations, and meaningful interpretations challenges the reduction of Singapore as a Generic City. Taking the imaginative field as the point of departure, the forms and modes of intellectual and creative articulations of Singapore's urban condition probe the resilience of cities and the people who reside in them through the images they convey or evoke as a means for collective expressions of human agency in placemaking
