Mentoring A Henley Review Of Best Practice:

The Situational Mentor Mrs Gill M Cox, Professor David Clutterbuck, 2012-10-01 Because the mentoring process involves a number of distinct stages a wide range of skills are needed throughout the process and these skills are situational. In other words a skilled mentor understands the principles of mentoring but is also able to use appropriate skills according to the person with whom they are working and the stage they have reached in the relationship. In addition different types of mentoring programme will demand a skills set particular to each. As with many other areas of development a mix of the theoretical and the practical is needed to ensure that programmes and relationships achieve their potential. In The Situational Mentor: An International Review of Competences and Capabilities in Mentoring David Clutterbuck and Gill Lane have brought together contributions from leading international academics and practitioners to define the key skills involved in mentoring and explore how these may be tailored to ensure a successful outcome in all instances. Mentoring J. Cranwell-Ward, P. Bossons, S. Gover, 2004-04-30 In the last few years there has been a big expansion in the range of applications of mentoring in business and in the scope of particular schemes in specific organizations. Internationally renowned authors map out the key historical and contemporary research before considering modern case study examples and future directions for the field. The chapters are organised into four areas: The Landscape of Mentoring, The Practice of Mentoring, The Context of Mentoring, Case Studies of Mentoring Around the Globe. This Handbook is a resource for mentoring academics, students and practitioners across a range of disciplines including business and management education, health psychology, counselling and social work. Practical Skills for Mentoring in Healthcare Morag Gray, 2017-09-16 How do you juggle the many responsibilities of the mentoring role with your own workload? Searby, Frances Kochan, Ruben Garza, Nahed Abdelrahman, 2020-02-14 The first collection in the area of mentoring that applies theory to real world practice, research programs and recommendations from an international perspective. In today's networked world society mentoring is a crucial area for study that requires a deep international understanding for effective implementation.
