The Art Institute of Chicago Museum Studies, Volume 12, Number 1, 1985 The Painterly Print Metropolitan Museum of Art (New York, N.Y.), Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, 1980 Museum Studies, 1985 Ancient Art at the Art Institute of Chicago Art Institute of Chicago, 1994 This issue commemorates the opening of the Art Institute of Chicago's new galleries of ancient art. An introduction to the history of the museum's ancient art collection is followed by sections of Egyptian, Greek, Etruscan, and Roman works, as well as glass vessels and coins from the ancient world. The Joseph Winterbotham Collection at the Art Institute of Chicago Art Institute of Chicago, 1994 Notable Acquisitions at the Art Institute of Chicago Since 1980 Art Institute of Chicago, 1992 The Invention of the American Art Museum Kathleen Curran, 2016-07-01 American art museums share a mission and format that differ from those of their European counterparts, which often have origins in aristocratic collections. This groundbreaking work recounts the fascinating story of the invention of the modern American art museum, starting with its roots in the 1870s in the craft museum type, which was based on London's South Kensington, now the Victoria and Albert Museum. At the turn of the twentieth century, American planners grew enthusiastic about a new type of museum and presentation that was developed in Northern Europe, particularly in Germany, Switzerland, and Scandinavia. Called Kulturgeschichte (cultural history), museums were evocative displays of regional history. American trustees, museum directors, and curators found that the Kulturgeschichte approach offered a variety of transformational options in planning museums, classifying and displaying objects, and broadening collecting categories, including American art and the decorative arts. Leading institutions, including the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, adopted and developed crucial aspects of the Kulturgeschichte model. By the 1930s, such museum plans and exhibition techniques had become standard practice at museums across the country.

Gender and the Formation of Taste in Eighteenth-Century Britain Robert W. Jones, 1998-07-02 Beauty is one of the most important and intriguing ideas in eighteenth-century culture. In Gender and the Formation of Taste in Eighteenth-Century Britain, Robert Jones provides a fresh understanding of how emergent critical discourses negotiated with earlier accounts of taste and beauty in order to redefine culture in line with the polite virtues of the urban middle classes. Crucially, the ability to form opinions on questions of beauty and the capacity to enter into debates on its nature was thought to characterise those able to participate in cultural discourse. Furthermore, the term beauty was frequently invoked in various and contradictory ways to determine acceptable behaviour for women. In his book, Jones discusses a wide range of material, including philosophical texts by William Hogarth and Edmund Burke, and Joshua Reynolds' novels by Charlotte Lennox and Sarah Scott, and the many representations of the celebrated beauty Elizabeth Gunning. One Hundred Years at the Art Institute Art Institute of Chicago, 1993 This issue is devoted to the history of the Art Institute of Chicago to commemorate the museum's hundredth year in its permanent home. Topics include the 1913 Armory Show, the career of former director Daniel Catton

Rich and the 1949 exhibition of the Arensberg Collection of modern art The Art Institute of Chicago Museum Studies, Volume 13, No. 2, 1988 Dreams and History Daniel Pick, Lyndal Roper, 2004-08-02 Dreams and History contains important new scholarship on Freud's Interpretation of Dreams 1900 and subsequent psychoanalytical approaches from distinguished historians psychoanalysts historians of science and anthropologists *Paul T.
