Domesticating the Invisible Melissa S. Ragain, 2021-01-12 Domesticating the Invisible examines how postwar notions of form developed in response to newly perceived environmental threats in turn inspiring artists to model plastic composition on natural systems often invisible to the human eye Melissa S Ragain focuses on the history of art education in Cambridge Massachusetts to understand how an environmental approach to form inspired new art programs at Harvard and MIT As they embraced scientific theories of composition these institutions also cultivated young artists as environmental agents who could influence urban design and contribute to an ecologically sensitive public sphere Ragain combines institutional and intellectual histories to map how the emergency of environmental crisis altered foundational modernist assumptions about form transforming questions about aesthetic judgment into questions about an ethical relationship to the environment

A Realist Theory of Art History Ian Verstegen, 2013 As the theoretical alignments within academia shift this book introduces a surprising variety of realism to abolish the old positivist theory dichotomy that has haunted Art History Demanding frankly the referential detachment of the objects under study the book proposes a stratified multi causal account of art history that addresses postmodern concerns while saving it from its errors of self refutation Building from the very basic distinction between intransitive being and transitive knowing objects can be affirmed as real while our knowledge of them is held to be fallible Several focused chapters address basic problems while introducing philosophical reflection into art history These include basic ontological distinctions between society and culture general and special history the discontinuity of cultural objects the importance of definition for special history scales facets and fiat objects as forms of historical structure the nature of evidence and proof historical truth and controversies Stressing Critical Realism as the stratified multi causal approach needed for productive research today in the academy this book creates the subject of the ontology of art history and sets aside a theoretical space for metaphysical reflection thus clarifying the usually muddy distinction between theory methodology and historiography in art history

Strawn,Ryan P. Bonfiglio,2015-10-28 Iconographic exegesis combines the study of biblical texts exegesis with the study of ancient expressions of visual art iconography Studying ancient visual art that is contemporary with the documents of the Old Testament gives remarkable insight not only on the meaning and historical context of the biblical text but also because it facilitates greater understanding of how the ancient authors and audiences saw thought and made sense of the world Iconography thus merits close attention as another avenue that can lead to a more nuanced and more complete understanding of the biblical text Each chapter of this book provides an exegesis of a particular biblical text or theme The book is organized around the tripartite structure of the Hebrew Bible and demonstrates that iconographical exegesis is pertinent to every nook and cranny of the Bible Within the three parts there is special emphasis on Genesis Isaiah and the Psalms in order to make the book attractive for classes that deal with one or more of these books and might therefore include an iconographic perspective In addition to connecting with a major issue in biblical interpretation theology or visual studies each chapter will end with one or two exercises directing the reader student to comparable texts and images enabling them to apply what was described in the chapter for themselves This approach enables beginners as well as advanced readers to integrate iconography into their toolbox of exegetical skills
