The Sound Production Handbook Don Atkinson, 2013-10-23 The Sound Protection Handbook is designed to be a useful guide to current operational sound practices within the broadcast industry Multi skilling within the industry has meant that the role of the sound engineer is now much wider with operators no longer specialising in any area but expected to possess a broad range of skills Basic sound theory is covered and presented in such a way as to provide enough theoretical information for the professional or student to enable them to perform the many sound roles required whether on location or in the studio. However the emphasis of the book is an operational one covering all aspects of sound operations within television broadcasting. The book follows a framework similar to that of NVQs and can be used as a practical source of information for those aspiring to those qualifications. The Sound Production Handbook is a useful source of guidance and reference for any operators who are changing roles and broadening their experience within the industry and provides an insight to current requirements not only from a technical point of view but also from a practical perspective. Audio Production Worktext Sam Sauls, Craig Stark, 2013-05-02 Providing insight into the impact media convergence has had on the radio industry this new edition delivers an excellent introduction to the modern radio production studio the equipment found in that studio and the basic techniques needed to accomplish radio production work. Wired for Sound Paul D. Greene, Thomas Porcello, 2012-01-01 Winner of the Society for Ethnomusicology's Klaus Wachsmann Award 2006 Wired for Sound is the first anthology to address the role of sound engineering technologies in the shaping of contemporary global music. Wired sound is at the basis of digital audio editing multi track recording and other studio practices that have powerfully impacted the world's music. Distinctions between musicians and engineers increasingly blur making it possible for people around the globe to imagine new sounds and construct new musical aesthetics. This collection of 11 essays employs primarily ethnographical but also historical and psychological approaches to examine a range of new technology intensive musics and musical practices such as fusions of Indian film song rhythms heavy metal and gamelan in Jakarta urban Nepali pop which juxtaposes heavy metal Tibetan Buddhist ritual chant rap and Himalayan folksongs collaborations between Australian aboriginals and sound engineers the production of heaviness in heavy metal music and the production of the Austin sound. This anthology is must reading for anyone interested in the global character of contemporary music technology. Radio / body Farokh Soltani, 2020-12-15 This study provides an in depth exploration of the dramaturgical practices of radio drama and their underlying philosophical assumptions By presenting an analytical model drawn from phenomenology it challenges the current understanding of the medium instead focusing on the bodily and aural aspects of radio drama while offering a critique of the conventions of dramaturgical practice for neglecting these affective sonic aspects Tracing these conventions through the history of the development of radio drama it proposes that a more bodily resonant mode of radio dramaturgy is best placed to meet the demands of the current era of digital production and distribution The book also examines a number of approaches to creating a more embodied experience for the listener
