Just Once, No More Charles Foran, 2025-05-13 In this vulnerable honest beautiful memoir award winning writer Charles Foran offers a brief and powerful meditation on fathers and sons love and loss even as his own father approaches the end of life Luminous Wise and moving Yann Martel Dave Foran was a formidable man of few words from a different era than his sensitive literary son Charlie As a younger person Dave had lived alone for months in the bush overcome snow blindness hauled a dead body across a frozen lake on a dogsled dodged bullets in a bar and gone toe to toe with a bear Some aspects of his life were rollicking while others were more restrained A decent father and a devoted husband Dave was also emotionally distant prone to laconic cynicism and a changeable mood As Charlie writes He struggled most days of his life with wounds he could not readily identify let alone heal The year Charlie turned 55 his 83 year old father began a slow final decline and Charlie surprised himself by wanting to write about their relationship On the surface his motivation was to reassure his father that he was loved But there was also a deeper desire at work Late into the middle of my own lifespan Charlie writes sadness took hold of my being I wanted to say so frankly never mind how uncomfortable it made me In spare haunting prose Just Once No More pulls on these delicate threads unravelling a fascinating personal story and revealing its poignant universality

A successful robber with a decent crew with a number of heists behind them, he later left Glasgow and came South after falling out with the notorious Digby crime clan. Experts Versus Laymen Barney Glaser, 2017-12-02. This book studies the relationship and balance of power between experts and laymen. It is rooted in the author's analysis of customer and contractor interactions in the housing industry but relevant to other kinds of expert/layman relationships. Many of the conflicts between customer and contractor noted by the author also occur in lawyer client student teacher and doctor patient relations The author s research is structured around three core categories pertaining to experts relations with laymen choosing experts power symmetry and what he calls elsewhereism The first category has to do with seeking experts finding them referrals and judging whether or not to use experts Power symmetry concerns the inherent imbalance of power between an expert and a layman Elsewhereism focuses on the constant competition that laymen face with unseen others in claiming the time and services of an expert Experts versus Laymen broadens the analysis of expert layman phenomena far beyond similar studies It examines processes of bidding gaining information inspecting and evaluating work winning trust bargaining over costs and determining who has situational control This book discusses not only the contracting process in the housing industry but far more important a world of power and domination in expert laymen relationships
