A black and white photograph of a small boat on a choppy sea. A person is visible in the background, possibly the author, Rolf Magener, who is the subject of the book. The boat is small and appears to be a motorboat or a small fishing boat. The sea is dark and has whitecaps, suggesting a rough or stormy sea. The overall tone of the image is dramatic and somber, reflecting the title of the book.

The Daring Escape by Two Germans
from India 1944

Our Chances Were Zero

Alastair Reynolds

Our Chances Were Zero:

Our Chances Were Zero Rolf Magener, 2008-03-05 During World War II the British imprisoned many German and Italian prisoners of war and civilian internees in India. The less cooperative prisoners were kept under harsh conditions in camps in the Himalayan foothills. The author was a German civilian working in India at the outbreak of war and was promptly interned by the British. In 1942 Magener and another prisoner Heins von Have finally managed to escape. Getting out of the camp was only the prelude to the difficult task of making their way across the entire Indian subcontinent in an attempt to reach friendly territory. Disguising themselves as British officers, the two Germans made an epic journey across India and through British forces on the Burma frontier in an attempt to link up with advancing Japanese forces. Ironically, the Japanese unit they finally located did not believe their story and they came close to being executed as spies. His grippingly told personal narrative of a German's escape from Allied custody is unique in the annals of prisoner of war escape and evasion. Forex

Zero Ed Stewart, 2005-02 It is an inescapable fact every situation has a Time Zero waiting to occur, be it the expectant mother anxiously looking forward to her new baby, a weary worker watching the clock slowly drag toward quitting time, or the end of San Francisco as we know it today. A clandestine meeting on the French Riviera between a terrorist and an international arms dealer to obtain Atomic Demolition Charges (mini A bombs) begins the trail of action and intrigue that culminates in San Francisco. A cross and double cross occurs as the A bombs change hands. Captain Tim Mitchell, the President's prodigal stepson, sneaks Major Jaqui Carlyle, an unauthorized crew member, onboard the final flight, testing the 21st century's newest military weapon, Night Vision Goggles, for pilots. When exposed, Major Carlyle is reassigned to a new hush hush facility in west Texas. Captain Mitchell is assigned to flying a desk as assistant information officer at the home of Star Wars, The Lawrence Livermore Laboratory in California. Armando Quionez, a self-educated scientist, is contacted by the terrorist who sky-jacked the ADCs and manufactures the ADC detonators. To prove his firing pin works, one is exploded at White Sands, New Mexico. Plexiglass coffins nicknamed Gadgets are constructed for two A bombs which are placed under the Golden Gate and Bay bridges. The bombs are armed so if it is disturbed, it will detonate. The news media is notified that the Gadgets are hot and
