Long-Haul Christian Truck Drivers Rebecca L. Upton, 2016-08-12 This book draws upon ethnographic and qualitative research in the United States to demonstrate the means through which long haul truck drivers navigate work and family tensions in ways that resonate across categories of race class gender and religion It examines how Christianity and constructions of masculinity are significant in the lives of long haul drivers and how truckers work to construct narratives of their lives as good moral individuals in contrast to competing cultural narratives which suggest images of romantic rule free renegade lives on the open road Based upon ethnographic fieldwork interviews observations of long haul truckers and participation in a CDL school this rich ethnography highlights how Christian trucking opportunities provide avenues through which balance is struck between work and family masculinity and other identities Embedded in larger social discourse about the meaning of masculinity and similar to evangelical perspectives such as those of the Promise Keepers Christian truckers often draw upon older ideas about responsible breadwinning fatherhood in their discourse about being good fathers while on the road This discourse is in some conflict with the lived experiences of Christian truckers who simultaneously find themselves confronted by more contemporary cultural narratives of the work family balance and expectations of what it
