From Form to Meaning David Fleming, 2011-06-12 In the spring of 1968 the English faculty at the University of Wisconsin Madison UW voted to remedialize the first semester of its required freshman composition course English 101 The following year it eliminated outright the second semester course English 102 For the next quarter century UW had no real campus wide writing requirement putting it out of step with its peer institutions and preventing it from fully joining the composition revolution of the 1970s In From Form to Meaning David Fleming chronicles these events situating them against the backdrop of late 1960s student radicalism and within the wider changes taking place in U S higher education at the time Fleming begins with the founding of UW in 1848 He examines the rhetorical education provided in the university s first half century the birth of a required two semester composition course in 1898 faculty experimentation with that course in the 1920s and 1930s and the rise of a massive current traditional writing program staffed primarily by graduate teaching assistants TAs after World War II He then reveals how starting around 1965 tensions between faculty and TAs concerning English 101 102 began to mount By 1969 as the TAs were trying to take over the committee that supervised the course the English faculty simply abandoned its long standing commitment to freshman writing In telling the story of composition s demise at UW Fleming shows how contributing factors the growing reliance on TAs the questioning of traditional curricula by young instructors and their students the disinterest of faculty in teaching and administering general education courses were part of a larger shift affecting universities nationally He also connects the events of this period to the long embattled history of freshman composition in the United States And he offers his own thoughts on the qualities of the course that have allowed it to survive and regenerate for over 125 years
