Religion as a Social Determinant of Public Health Ellen L. Idler, 2014 Frequently in partnership but sometimes at odds religious institutions and public health institutions work to improve the well being of their communities There is increasing awareness among public health professionals and the general public that the social conditions of poverty lack of education income inequality poor working conditions and experiences of discrimination play a dominant role in determining health status But this broad view of the social determinants of health has largely ignored the role of religious practices and institutions in shaping the life conditions of billions around the globe In Religion as a Social Determinant of Public Health leading scholars in the social sciences public health and religion address this omission by examining the embodied sacred practices of the world's religions the history of alignment and tension between religious and public health institutions the research on the health impact of religious practice throughout the life course and the role of religious institutions in health and development efforts around the globe In addition the volume explores religion's role in the ongoing epidemics of HIV AIDS and Alzheimer's disease as well as preparations for an influenza pandemic Together these groundbreaking essays help complete the picture of the social determinants of health by including religion which has until now been an invisible determinant

Tearfund and the Quest for Faith-Based Development Dena Freeman, 2019-08-19 This book gives an in depth analysis of the role of faith in the work of Tearfund a leading evangelical relief and development NGO that works in over 50 countries worldwide The study traces the changing ways that faith has shaped and influenced Tearfund's work over the organisation's 50 year history It shows how Tearfund has consciously grappled with the role of faith in its work and has invested considerable time and energy in developing an intentionally faith based approach to relief and development that in several ways is quite different to the approaches of secular relief and development NGOs The book charts the different perspectives and possibilities that were not taken and the internal discussions about theology development practices and humanitarian standards that took place as Tearfund worked out for itself what it meant to be a faith based relief and development organisation There is a growing academic literature about religion and development as well as increasing interest from development ministries of many Northern governments in understanding the role of religion in development and the specific challenges and benefits involved in working with faith based organisations However there are very few studies of actual faith based organisations and no book length detailed studies showing how such an organisation operates in practice and how it integrates its faith into its work In documenting the story of Tearfund the book provides important insights into the practice and ethos of faith based organisations which will
