Sharing Power Women In Politics:

Sharing Power Manon Tremblay, 2017-03-02 The representation of women in parliament is a subject of extensive research and a focus for political action in the last decade The wide variation in women s parliamentary presence contradicts the expectation that established or consolidated democracies are more supportive of the presence of women in political life than emerging democracies This volume explains this variation through a series of closely investigated case studies from the post Communist transition democracies of Eastern Europe and emerging democracies in Asia and the Middle East to the long established liberal democratic states The volume examines the history of women s legislative involvement clearly addressing the issue of equal opportunities for women in political life on a cross national basis It also identifies innovative solutions to redress the power sharing balance between women and men Offering a unique comparative perspective Sharing Power will appeal to students and scholars of politics women s studies history and legislative studies persistent obstacles to gender equality in politics Political Empowerment of Women Monique Leyenaar, 2004-11-01

The problem of ensuring that women are at the heart of political decision making is now very topical in Europe. This is because despite all of the international agreements, the research, the recommendations and the untold other efforts, the participation of women in political bodies remains low in most European countries. European governance in short still fails to include 50 per cent of women in its political decision making. Why do political leaders attach importance to this issue? The underrepresentation of women in national parliaments poses a problem in terms of both the practice and the theory of politics. In practical terms, the underrepresentation of women in political leadership is even more remarkable when one realizes that women have succeeded in gaining access to other sectors of society in many European countries. Moreover, equality between men and women is now a leading political principle all over Europe. Taking part in decision making, however, in politics as well as in the private sector, typically remains a male privilege. This book explains the high level of current concern for the underrepresentation of women in politics. It explores the reasons behind recent favourable attitudes towards sharing political power with women in the Netherlands and in other European countries. It identifies the many obstacles and strategies and it points out future expectations about the representation of women in Europe. Under which circumstances can political players be influenced to change institutions and procedures in favour of newcomers to politics? The current crisis of politics opens a window of opportunity for changing the underlying male biased structures. Women and Politics
