Machor, 2011-04-01 James L Machor offers a sweeping exploration of how American fiction was received in both public and private spheres in the United States before the Civil War Machor takes four antebellum authors

Edgar Allan Poe Herman Melville Catharine Sedgwick and Caroline Chesebro and analyzes how their works were published received and interpreted Drawing on discussions found in book reviews and in private letters and diaries Machor examines how middle class readers of the time engaged with contemporary fiction and how fiction reading evolved as an interpretative practice in nineteenth century America Through careful analysis Machor illuminates how the reading practices of nineteenth century Americans shaped not only the experiences of these writers at the time but also the way the writers were received in the twentieth century What Machor reveals is that these authors were received in ways strikingly different from how they are currently read thereby shedding significant light on their present status in the literary canon in comparison to their critical and popular positions in their own time Machor deftly combines response and reception criticism and theory with work in the history of reading to engage with groundbreaking scholarship in historical hermeneutics In so doing Machor takes us ever closer to understanding the particular and varying reading strategies of historical audiences and how they impacted authors conceptions of their own readership

Imagining America Peter Conrad, 2024-11-01 In his book Imagining America originally published in 1980 Peter Conrad shows how the English literary imagination over the course of a century devised for itself a contradictory series of ideal or alarming Americas which it then sets out to actualize For Mrs Trollope Americans are unkempt brutes throwbacks to savagery for H G Wells they are a future race of cerebral technocrats Oscar Wilde and Rupert Brooke want to redeem them by corrupting them with the insidious gospel of art D H Lawrence wants to rescue them by fomenting revolution in their stale sterile society For W H Auden Americans are an existential people sad citizens of a deracinated modern world suffering from anxiety for Chrstopher Isherwood they are bland sun tanned Oriental angels But there is a logic to the succession of these images which Peter Conrads s narrative follows The Victorians are disturbed by America because it is not yet a society and lacks the upholstery of manners Their modern successors however praise it for this very disability and find there a psychological mystical or even psychedelic freedom denied to them by the Europe they have left behind Imagining America is stimulating both as cultural history and literary criticism Superbly written it presents an argumentative tour de force in a style that is witty and diverting
