Background & Relevance

Local governments play a crucial role in addressing the intersection of climate change and public health within their communities. As frontline responders, they implement policies and initiatives to mitigate climate-related health risks and build local resilience to various hazards and challenges. Taking meaningful action at the climate-health nexus creates many “sticky” challenges for local governments.

Even though the need for decisive action is clear, several factors stand in the way of progress, including constrained resources, data gaps, siloes, inequities, as well as the sheer scale of the work that local governments need to do.

ICLEI - Local Governments for Sustainability USA’s June Insights and Exchange webinar speakers explored frameworks, tools, approaches, and their experiences working at the climate-health nexus.

Cross-disciplinary collaboration, equitable engagement, and a whole-of-government approach are essential to solving public health challenges posed by climate change. Achieving these aims requires building networks and relationships ahead of time. Focus on early and sustained engagement before disasters strike to avoid losing momentum or being caught unprepared.

2

Use existing tools, frameworks, and platforms as jumping-off points, not prescriptions. Always look for ways to bring creativity and adaptability to your approach in a way that resonates with your community (e.g., short videos, games).

3

Do not lose sight of climate impacts on community and staff mental health. Climate grief, guilt, anxiety, and apathy are all normal responses to the climate crisis. Make space for staff and community members to talk about their feelings about climate change. Use your work as a platform to raise awareness about existing resources, such as local support groups and Climate Cafes.
