I

In attempting a survey of one of the great periods of literary history, the critic is met with a problem, upon his conceptions and solution of which will depend both method and distribution of material. This initial difficulty may be stated in the form of questions. What central point of view can be adopted? How shall the order of inquiry be determined? Do the phenomena to be considered suggest some natural classification; or must the combination of a system be introduced by means of artificial manipulation?
