

Think, Pair, Share: Will Shari'ah law be the same everywhere?

There are five different schools of interpretation of sharia: one in the Shia tradition of Islam and four in the Sunni tradition. Middle Eastern countries of the former Ottoman empire favour the Hanafi doctrine and north African countries prefer the Maliki doctrine; Indonesia and Malaysia follow the Shafi'i doctrine; Saudi Arabia adheres to the Hanbali doctrine; and Iran follows the Shia Jaafari school. All the schools are similar, but some take a more literal approach to texts while others prefer a loose interpretation.

The many faces of Sharia

By Prof. Anwar Michael Ghanem

When many non-Muslims think of the Sharia, they often conjure up an image of a public beheading or amputation.

However, Sharia differs enormously in its various implementations throughout the Islamic world.

Saudi Arabia has long practised a harsh form of the law, under which murderers and drug smugglers may be executed, men may wear headscarves, and children may be stoned.

But as Islamic states of the Anglo Foundation in London explains, this does not offer a satisfactory understanding of the Sharia.

"Some offences require harsher penalties, but of course, it's not the case that everyone in Saudi Arabia is walking around with a sword or other form of weapon. Nor are they all in fear of being put to the sword or being beheaded," he says.

Other Muslims add that Saudi Arabia's judges are the only branch of state over which the country's royal family has no control, as Sharia makes them heavily independent of all but their religious obligations.

Yet, as the Anglo explains, not all Muslim countries prevent politics from interfering with the purity of Sharia.

Ghosh, 2018-05-11 The viability of the Uniform Civil Code UCC has always been a bone of contention in socially and politically plural South Asia It is entangled within the polemics of identity politics minority rights women's rights national integration uniform citizenry and of late global Islamic politics and universal human rights While champions of each category view the issue from their own perspectives making the debate extremely complex this book takes up the challenge of providing a holistic political analysis As most of the South Asian states today subscribe to a decentralised view and share a common history this study is an excellent comparative analysis of the applicability of the UCC In this work India figures prominently being the most plural and vibrant democracy as well as accounting for almost three fourths of the region's population This provides the backdrop for an analysis of the other states in the region This second edition will be indispensable for scholars researchers and students of law political science and South Asian Studies The School of Hilla and the Formation of Twelver Shi'i Islamic Tradition Aun Hasan Ali, 2023-06-15 Against the background of long standing narratives in which Twelver Shi'ism is viewed as fundamentally authoritarian The School of Hilla and the Formation of

Twelver Shi'i Islamic Tradition builds upon recent scholarship in the fields of Religious Studies Anthropology and History to argue that Twelver Shi'ism is better understood as a discursive tradition At a conceptual level this solves the basic problem of how to integrate the extraordinary diversity of Twelver Shi'ism across time and space into a single historical category without engaging in a normative assessment of its underlying essence Furthermore in light of this conception of tradition the School of Hillah stands out as a seminal period in the archive of Twelver Shi'ism though it has seldom been recognized as such in European language scholarship Insofar as it gave birth to a conversation that would prove capable of encompassing the dynamism of Twelver Shi'ism the School of Hillah should be considered the formative period of Twelver Shi'i tradition Moreover when the tradition is conceptualized in this manner it is a bulwark against the very authoritarianism by which Twelver Shi'ism has been characterized for so long

A Continuity of Shari'a Brian Wright, 2023-03-07 A challenge to the end of the shari'a thesis in Islamic legal historiography In the second half of the nineteenth century states across the Muslim World developed new criminal codes and reshaped their legal landscapes laying the foundations of the systems that continue to inform the application of justice today Influenced by colonialism and the rise of the modern state's desire to control its populations many have seen the introduction of these codes as a pivotal shift and divergence from the shari'a the dominant paradigm in premodern Muslim jurisdictions In A Continuity of Shari'a Brian Wright challenges this view comparing among the Egyptian Ottoman and Indian contexts By examining the environment in which the new codes were created highlighting the work of local scholars and legal actors and examining the content of the codes themselves Wright argues that the criminal systems of the late nineteenth century have more connections to their past than is previously understood Colonial influence was adapted to local circumstances and synthesized with premodern understandings in an eclectic legal environment to create solutions to local problems while maintaining a continuity with the shari'a This book will be of interest to scholars and students of Islamic Studies Islamic Law and Islamic Legal History

Law and Society in East Asia Christoph Antons, 2017-07-05 The massive and complex process of change in East Asia over recent decades has brought about a transformation in the nature of law and legal institutions in the region Whilst the process of change has to some degree mimicked western models of law and legal change there have been significant differences in approach due to the different social foundations of East Asian societies The more obvious of these has been the variety of ways in which rule of law ideas have been adopted in many East Asian countries where the role of the state is more dominant when compared with Western models This volume brings together a selection of the most important writings on East Asia of researchers in recent years and shows the broad range of questions which researchers have been addressing about the effect of law reform and legal change in societies dominated by traditional values and political forces and at a time of massive economic change

Everyday Islamic Law and the Making of Modern South Asia Elizabeth Lhost, 2025-02-20 Beginning in the late eighteenth century British rule transformed the relationship between law society and the state in South Asia But qazis and muftis alongside ordinary people without formal training in law fought back as the colonial system in India sidelined Islamic legal experts They petitioned the East India Company for employment lobbied imperial legislators for recognition and built robust institutions to serve their communities By bringing legal debates into the public sphere they resisted the colonial state's authority over personal law and rejected legal codification by embracing flexibility and possibility With postcards letters and telegrams they made everyday Islamic law vibrant and resilient and challenged the hegemony of the Anglo Indian legal system Following these developments from the beginning of the Raj through independence Elizabeth Lhost rejects narratives of stagnation and decline to show how an unexpected coterie of scholars practitioners and ordinary individuals negotiated the contests and challenges of colonial legal change The rich archive of unpublished fatwa files qazi notebooks and legal documents they left behind chronicles their efforts to make Islamic law relevant for everyday life even beyond colonial courtrooms and the confines of family law Lhost shows how ordinary Muslims shaped colonial legal life and how their diversity and difference have contributed to contemporary debates about religion law pluralism and democracy in South Asia and beyond

The Mosques of Colonial South Asia Sana Haroon, 2021-06-17 In a series of legal battles starting in 1882 South Asian Muslims made up of modernists traditionalists reformists Shias and Sunnis attempted to modify the laws relating to their places of worship Their efforts failed as the ideals they presented flew in the face of colonial secularism This book looks at the legal history of Muslim endowments and the intellectual and social history of sectarian identities demonstrating how these topics are interconnected in ways that affected the everyday lives of mosque congregants across North India Through the use of legal records archives and multiple case studies Sana Haroon ties a series of narrative threads stretching across multiple regions in Colonial South Asia
