Managing Green Mandates:

Managing Green Mandates Pietro S. Nivola, Jon A. Shields, 2004-06-23 Federal policies have made great progress protecting the environment But the policies sometimes have imposed inordinate costs on local governments Managing Green Mandates describes how various federal environmental directives do not suit diverse conditions at the local level and compel local communities to spend their revenues on reducing relatively minor risks to the public health While policymakers have thrown far reaching requirements at the feet of local authorities the federal government is providing them less aid to comply with the increasingly stringent standards The burden of these underfunded mandates can further disadvantage many overtaxed municipalities Pietro Nivola is a senior fellow in the Governmental Studies program at the Brookings Institution He is the author of The Laws of the Landscape How Politics Shape Cities in Europe and America Brookings 1999 Jon Shields is a graduate student in the Department of Government and Foreign Affairs at the University of Virginia

Greenhouse Governance Barry G. Rabe, 2010-09-01 Public deliberation over climate change has traditionally been dominated by the natural and physical sciences Is the planet warming To what degree and is mankind responsible How big a problem is this really But concurrent with these debates is the question of what should be done Indeed what can be done Issues of governance including the political feasibility of certain policies and their capacity for implementation have received short shrift in the conversation But they absolutely must be addressed as we respond to this unprecedented challenge Greenhouse Governance brings a much needed public policy mindset to discussion of climate change in America Greenhouse Governance features a number of America's preeminent public policy scholars examining some aspect of governance and climate change They analyze the state and influence of American public opinion on climate change as well as federalism and intergovernmental relations which prove especially important since state and local governments have taken a more active role than originally expected Specific policy issues examined include renewable electricity standards mandating greater vehicle fuel economy the adaptation vs mitigation debate emissions trading and carbon taxes The contributors do consider the scientific and economic questions of climate policy but place special emphasis on political and managerial issues They analyze the role of key American government institutions including the courts Congress and regulatory agencies The final two chapters put the discussion into an international context looking at climate governance challenges in North America relations with the European Union and possible models for international governance Contributors include Christopher Borick Muhlenberg College Martha Derthick University of Virginia Kirsten Engel University
