Schooling Reform In Hard Times Bob Linguard, John Knight, Paige Porter, 2003-09-02 Based on research carried out under Labour governments throughout the 1990s in Western Australia the authors consider the social political and economic conditions under which policy is formulated understood and enacted They look at how the state structure affects the content and nature of policy statements and provide an outline of the history of policy developments and point to future possibilities and probabilities Outcomes within funding ceilings accountability frameworks and national guidelines are but some of the changes referred to The emergence of competency based standards in education and training in schools workplaces and the professions is evident throughout Australia at state level but the concern is whether issues of education should be played out within the state and outside civil society The authors argue for the mediation in implementation of policy rather than a lambasting of policy formulation and implementation This text is intended for heads of education departments PGCE BEd MEd students and researchers interested in education policy and planning Education policymakers and educational historians

Public Schools in Hard Times David B. Tyack, Robert Lowe, Elisabeth Hansot, 1984 In the first social history of what happened to public schools in those years of the locust the authors explore the daily experience of schoolchildren in many kinds of communities the public school students of working class northeastern towns the rural black children of the South the prosperous adolescents of midwestern suburbs How did educators respond to the fiscal crisis and why did Americans retain their faith in public schooling during the cataclysm The authors examine how New Dealers regarded public education and the reaction of public school people to the distinctive New Deal style in programs such as the National Youth Administration They illustrate the story with photographs cartoons and vignettes of life behind the schoolhouse door Moving from that troubled period to our own the authors compare the anxieties of the depression decade with the uncertainties of the 1970s and 1980s Heirs to an optimistic tradition and trained to manage growth school staff have lately encountered three shortages of pupils money and public confidence Professional morale has dropped as expectations and criticism have mounted Changes in the governing and financing of education have made planning for the future even riskier than usual Drawing on the experience of the 1930s to illuminate the problems of the 1980s the authors lend historical perspective to current discussions about the future of public education They stress the basic stability of public education while emphasizing the unfinished business of achieving equality in schooling Managing Schools in Hard Times Stanton F. Leggett, Paul Abramson, 1981 A Guide to Managing and Leading School Operations Jerome Cranston, 2018-02-23 The job of school leader has become progressively more demanding The role includes increasingly complex problems to be solved and increasingly deep piles of paperwork to complete Unfortunately the managing of employees the preparing and justifying of resource both personnel and financial projections and the complexities involved in operating facilities safely and legally are the most frequently mentioned reasons for why school leaders begin to question their career choice And while faculties and colleges of education as well as principals professional associations offer courses and workshops very few adequately address the gaps that exist between theory and practice in a way that would mitigate this reticence to lead in this climate A Principled Guide to Managing and Leading School Operations fills a gap in the training of educational leaders by orienting them to the vitally important business operations required to run a school This book therefore is for all school leaders who wish they had been given a school operations field manual and it is for those who prepare them who might wish to rebalance anew the current propensity of principal preparation programs that blindly privilege leadership identity over developing the requisite management acumen teachers parents and the public expect Leading Schools in Challenging Times Bruce Anthony Jones, Anthony Rolle, 2016-03-01 Over the past 30 years our public school system has received an unprecedented amount of attention as this concerns methods of school reform and policy strategies for bringing about this reform During the 1980s the emphasis of school reform was on transparency through school community partnerships Business and philanthropy for example became involved with issues of schooling that was unheard of prior to this period The 1980s also gave rise to issues of school finance and student performance that went beyond traditional views that tended to focus on finance adequacy to views that focused more on school finance arrangements that would lead to actual equitable outcomes in student performance The 1990s witnessed the emergence of the comprehensive school reform movement whereby curriculum outsourcing occurred at rates that had never occurred before With this movement the role of teachers and school leaders in the creation of school curriculum diminished as school districts increasingly purchased vendor related curriculum packages which included teacher and leader training modules and methods of curriculum assessment On the heels of the increasing tendency of school districts to outsource school curriculum to curriculum vendors came a rise in demands for school accountability and school outcomes This was particularly evident with the passage of No Child Left Behind Act NCLB 2001 NCLB was also developed within a political context that called for demands in the academic improvement of schools and school districts that housed historically disenfranchised students These demands were particularly important as the nation experienced and continues to experience dramatic increases in student racial and ethnic diversity This volume entitled Leading Schools in Challenging Times Eye to the Future discusses varying types of school leadership in the context of key topics that have been at the center of on going school reform in the United States These topics include challenges opportunities and issues associated with our administrator and teacher leadership pipeline preparation and development leadership and school finance reform leadership and changing student and population demographics leadership and the role of community issues of leadership policy public accountability and school performance outcomes The authors also explicate these issues with a view to the future and the status of leadership in our public school system 101 Solutions for School Counselors and Leaders in Challenging Times Stuart F.
