Tudor,2010-07-28 The failure

effectively to sustain IT systems and react to change due to the huge investments that organisations make in these systems is likely to impact on an organisation's bottom line. This means that an ad hoc approach to IT Service management is not an option. It is vital to focus on business value, good ROI, speed to market and delivery of solutions in response to change. Agile approaches mean an incremental method to change, early delivery of business value and collaborative work towards change. Understanding and employing ITIL, PRINCE2 and DSDM together can provide the potential for a well-run infrastructure which is responsive to change and will not halt progress. This publication offers practical guidance on how to deliver an IT Service by employing ITIL, PRINCE2 and DSDM together and provides an overview of all three approaches and describes the benefits of each. It also describes the issues that arise from implementing ITIL, the structure and content of PRINCE2, the breadth of DSDM and how they fit together, where the common areas sit and where the specialities for each exist.

The two events are introduced briefly below. BPMDS 2010 was the 11th in a series of workshops that have successfully served as a forum for raising and discussing new ideas in the area of business process development and support. The BPMDS series has produced 10 workshops from 1998 to 2009. Eight of these workshops, including the last seven BPMDS 2003 to BPMDS 2009, were held in conjunction with CAiSE conferences. The BPMDS workshops focus on topics relating to IT support for business processes, which addresses key issues that are relevant to the continuous development of information systems theory. The continued interest in these topics within the industrial and academic IS communities is reflected by the success of the last BPMDS workshops and the emergence of new conferences devoted to this theme.
