teacher who can give young learners the high quality mathematics education that they deserve by exploring the philosophy that lies behind good mathematics teaching and its application in the classroom Throughout the book you are encouraged to put your own thoughts on mathematics learning and teaching under the microscope and examine your perceptions and understanding in order to develop as a critically reflective teacher aware of potential challenges and what underpins effective mathematics teaching in primary schools Coverage includes developing your own philosophy towards mathematics teaching understanding links between confidence and learning the importance of subject knowledge common beliefs and attitudes among mathematics learners how to develop your relationship with the subject This is essential reading for all students studying primary mathematics on initial teacher education courses including undergraduate BEd BA with QTS postgraduate PGCE School Direct SCITT Teach First and NQTs Elizabeth Jackson has over thirty years experience of mathematics education through primary and secondary school teaching lecturing in initial teacher education and supervising Master s dissertations as well as conducting research into mathematics and writing Effective Mathematics Teaching from Teachers' Perspectives ,2009-01-01 What is effective mathematics teaching This book represents the first purposeful cross cultural collection of studies to answer this question from teachers perspectives It focuses particularly on how teachers view effective teaching of mathematics Teachers voices are heard and celebrated throughout the studies reported in this volume These studies are drawn from many parts of the world representing both Eastern and Western cultural traditions The editors and authors have deliberately included the views of teachers and educators from different cultural backgrounds taking into account that beliefs on effective mathematics teaching and its features are highly influenced by one s own culture The book will provide readers and scholars with the stimulus to take the ideas presented and expand on them in ways that help improve mathematics education for children teachers and researchers in both the East and the West

Effective Learning and Teaching in Mathematics and Its Applications Peter Kahn,Joseph Kyle,2003-12-16 The Effective Learning and Teaching in Higher Education series is packed with up to date advice guidance and expert opinion on teaching in the key subjects in higher education today and is backed up by the authority of the Institute for Learning and Teaching This book covers all of the key issues surrounding the effective teaching of maths a key subject in its own right and one that forms an important part of many other disciplines The book includes contributions from a wide range of experts in the field and has a broad and international perspective Dénonciation de l'établissement abusivement appelé Mont-de-Piété. Août 1789 , The New Art and Science of Teaching Mathematics Nathan D. Lang,Robert J. Marzano,2019 In The New Art and Science of Teaching Mathematics authors Nathan D Lang Raad and Robert J Marzano describe in detail how the New Art and Science of Teaching model should be used in the mathematics classroom Recognizing that the New Art system was originally created as a general model of instruction the authors adapt the model to the instruction of mathematics in order to address how instruction changes in a particular subject area Thus the authors explain each of the ten design areas and the forty three elements of instruction within those design areas originally laid out in Robert Marzano's The New Art and Science of Teaching as well as how they should be addressed in the mathematics classroom. In addition to explanation of the design areas the authors also provide numerous strategies and methods for implementation that mathematics instructors will find invaluable in their own use of the New Art model in the classroom. In this book readers will find a detailed and well researched guide to the implementation of the New Art model of instruction that will allow them to pursue implementation of improved student outcomes.

People, Politics, Policies and Plans Ted Kitchen, 1997-04-28 This is the first substantial book written from first hand experience by a British planning practitioner about what the planning process is actually like in a major British city. The city in this case is Manchester for which authority Ted Kitchen worked from 1979 to 1996. The book looks at how the elements in the making of planning decisions interact. Its primary purpose is to illuminate the complex workings of the planning process in the real world. As well as considering the basic tools of development plan making and development control used by the planning process the author looks at the actors planning staff elected members and the other main groups of customers of the planning service and at the major fields of activity with which the planning process engages These include the need to improve the economic base of the city the problems of planning in the inner city transportation issues and attempts to move towards more sustainable urban policies and practices Much of this material is controversial and most of it is presented in case study format The author deals fully with matters that show the interactions between the professional work of the planning staff and the operation of the political process The book shows how processes of urban regeneration were tackled during a period when the city of Manchester was experiencing a renaissance in many elements of its economic life Many of these processes such as the city's bids for the 1996 and 2000 Olympic Games were high profile activities which strengthened the city's image in the wider world At the same time the living circumstances of many people worsened particularly in the inner city Policy development struggled with this tension as well as with others such as the challenge to the dominant economic regeneration model posed by the emerging issue of urban sustainability The author turns an insider's eye on the processes of policymaking at work in this situation and the planning service is shown grappling with a difficult policy agenda and a difficult political situation in a period of diminishing resources
