Handbook of Research on Global Business Opportunities Christiansen, Bryan, 2014-10-31 In the modern globalized economy it is important for businesses of all sizes to take advantage of the opportunity to enter diverse markets around the world. Through an international presence organizations can remain competitive. The Handbook of Research on Global Business Opportunities combines comprehensive viewpoints and research on various business enterprises from around the world in companies of all sizes and models discussing different aspects and concerns in the global business environment such as corruption, taxation, supply chain management, and economic impacts. This handbook is an essential reference source for business executives from both large and small firms, business scholars, researchers, academics, students, and professionals.

Managing Education for Business and Commerce in a Globalized World , The Changing Landscape of International Schooling Tristan Bunnell, 2014-06-27 The number of English medium international schools that deliver their curriculum wholly or partly in the English language reportedly reached 6 000 in January 2012. It is anticipated this number will rise to over 11 000 schools by 2022, employing over 500 000 English speaking teachers. The number of children being taught in these schools reportedly reached 3 million in March 2012. Alongside this phenomenal growth, the landscape of international schooling has changed fundamentally, moving away from largely serving the children of the expat and globally mobile business community and Embassies towards serving the local children of the wealthy and emerging middle class. This has been reflected in the shift away from non profit ownership by the school community towards ownership by for profit companies and proprietors. In this book, Tristan Bunnell explores the changing landscape of international schooling and discusses the implications of these changes both in terms of theoretically conceptualizing the scale, nature, and purpose of the field, and in terms of practically serving and administering the growing industry that international education is becoming. The Changing Landscape of International Schooling will be worthwhile reading for researchers, academics, and students of international schooling, leaders and teachers in international schools, and those interested in the broader development of international education.

Teachers' Journeys into International School Teaching in China Adam Poole, 2023-10-12 Poole s book illuminates the experiences and perspectives of host country national teachers at internationalised schools in China The international school sector in China has undergone significant changes in recent years This is due to the growing demand for international education from local middle class families In response a new type of school has emerged Going by various names such as private bilingual or internationalised these schools offer a fusion of national and international curricula and are staffed predominantly by host country national teachers Despite these changes we still know little about who host country national teachers are and what draws them to the world of international schooling Accordingly this book explores the motivations and mobilities of host country national teachers in China It identifies three types of teacher Returners Reachers and Remainers Returners are graduates who have returned to China from overseas study They are drawn to international schools by the opportunity to use their international experience and qualification Reachers are internal migrants who face structural inequality and attracted to international schools by the opportunity for social mobility Remainers are married teachers with children They are motivated to work in international schools by the perceived stability and security these schools offer Discussing implications for teacher recruitment development and retention in international schools this book is an essential read for international educational researchers as well as students researching international education or teacher identity

The Discursive Construction of Intercultural

Understanding in China Wang Xi, 2015-11-11 This book represents an ethnographic study of an International Baccalaureate Diploma Program in a school in mainland China serving Chinese students and staffed by teachers from a variety of origins. It offers in-depth descriptions of the way in which students, teachers, and managers interact and communicate with one another in a variety of school activities. Through the communication process, cultural experiences and understandings are negotiated constantly among school participants. The ethnographic study also has a critical intention. Going beyond description, the author discusses the extent to which networks of social relationships in the case are imbued by asymmetries in power and how this leads to people's inability, unwillingness, and unawareness to interact with those from different cultural backgrounds. As research findings reveal, where the construction of meaning is less equally available to each participant, prejudice and exclusiveness are more likely to be assumed, impeding individuals' intercultural learning. The key is to empower those less privileged, giving them legitimacy to come to voice in an institutional context on the one hand, and protecting their reflections on hegemonic discourse meticulously on the other hand. Since the research explores the complexities and subtleties of the communication process that are bound to particular contexts like most ethnographic studies, it aims at adding a body of experience and humanistic understanding of cultures rather than testing theories. Although the IB Program being studied can hardly be representative of the overall development of international education in China, the detailed description of contextual issues of the case and the research procedures could facilitate the readers to vicariously experience these events, thus they can make their own decisions about the transferability of the research to their own unique situations.

Globalisation and Education Bob Lingard, 2020-10-28 This collection focuses on education policy in the context of globalisation and draws together influential research dealing with the interplay between education policy and globalisation. Globalisation and neo-liberalism in relation to education policy are addressed, as is the impact of the global financial crisis, the recent rise of ethno-nationalism, and progressive challenges to neo-liberal hegemony. A number of chapters deal with the new spatialities instantiated by globalisation's new technology and consider the implications for education policy. Also discussed are global policy actors such as the OECD, EU, and edu-businesses in education policy; the significance of international large-scale assessments to an emergent global policy field; refugees and education; English language policy and globalisation; off-shore schools; and the importance of affect in policy in the context of globalisation. The collection closes with two methodological contributions that consider the implications of globalisation in today's critical education policy analysis. The collection is brought together in a substantial introduction that traverses the literature and research on globalisation and education policy and also situates the chapters and approaches in the collection within the field. The chapters in this book were originally published as articles in various Taylor and Francis journals.
