Man's Place in the Universe Alfred Wallace, 2021-03-16 A Man's Place John Tosh, 2008-10-01 Domesticity is generally treated as an aspect of women's history In this fascinating study of the nineteenth century middle class John Tosh shows how profoundly men's lives were conditioned by the Victorian ideal and how they negotiated its many contradictions Tosh begins by looking at the experience of boyhood married life sex and fatherhood in the early decades of the nineteenth century illustrated by case studies representing a variety of backgrounds and then contrasts this with the lives of the late Victorian generation He finds that the first group of men placed a new value on the home as a reaction to the disorienting experience of urbanization and as a response to the teachings of Evangelical Christianity Domesticity still proved problematic in practice however because most men were likely to be absent from home for most of the day and the role of father began to acquire its modern indeterminacy By the 1870s men were becoming less enchanted with the pleasures of home Once the rights of wives were extended by law and society marriage seemed less attractive and the bachelor world of clubland flourished as never before The Victorians declared that to be fully human and fully masculine men must be active participants in domestic life In exposing the contradictions in this ideal they defined the climate for gender politics in the next century DIV Man's Place in Nature Thomas H. Huxley, 2012-08-08

especially call attention to some observations which I owe to the kindness of Prof Huxley given as a supplement at the end of Part I on the nature of the differences between the brains of man and the higher apes I have been particularly glad to give these observations because during the last few years several memoirs on the subject have appeared on the Continent and their importance has been in some cases greatly exaggerated by popular writers I may take this opportunity of remarking that my critics frequently assume that I attribute all changes of corporeal structure and mental power exclusively to the natural selection of such variations as are often called spontaneous whereas even in the first edition of the Origin of Species I distinctly stated that great weight must be attributed to the inherited effects of use and disuse with respect both to the body and mind I also attributed some amount of modification to the direct and prolonged action of changed conditions of life

Thomas F. Torrance Paul D. Molnar, 2016-02-17 This book provides an important study of the theology of Thomas F Torrance who is generally considered to have been one of the most significant theologians writing in English during the twentieth century with a view toward showing how his theological method and all his major doctrinal views were shaped by his understanding of the doctrine of the Trinity Torrance pursued a theology that was realist because he attempted to think in accordance with the unique nature of the object that is known In holding to such a methodology he drew an analogy between theology and natural science This book demonstrates how for Torrance God relates with humanity within time and space so that creation finds its meaning in relation to God and not in itself this enabled him to avoid many theological pitfalls such as agnosticism subjectivism and dualism while explaining the positive implications of various Christian doctrines in a penetrating and compelling manner This book offers an important resource for students of theology and for scholars who are interested in seeing how serious dogmatic theology shapes and should shape our understanding of the Christian life

The club is led by Henry Winter, a brilliant and charismatic young man. Henry is obsessed with Greek mythology and philosophy, and he quickly draws Richard into his world. The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Charles Tavis is a quiet and reserved young man who is deeply in love with Henry. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him.
