Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs, 1974 Abstract A 1974 expert report for food and nutrition program officials and policy makers prepared for the US

Senate by the Select Committee on Nutrition and Human Needs presents a position paper of the Food and Nutrition Board FNB of the US National Academy of Sciences on the relationship of nutrition to brain development and behavior and 8 related reprinted reports The FNB position paper summarizes and discusses the results of human and animal behavioral studies with nutritional status and identifies additional research needs Five of the reprinted reports combined are offered as a position paper of the American Dietetic Association The remaining 3 reprinted reports represent individual papers dealing with the evaluation of small scale nutrition programs the economic benefits of eliminating hunger in America and the controversial potential of physician induced malnutrition Handbook of Pain and Aging David I. Mostofsky, Jacob Lomranz, 2013-11-11 From time to time professional journals and edited volumes devote some of their pages to considerations of pain and aging as they occur among the aged in different cultures and populations One starts from several reasonable assumptions among them that aging per se is not a disease process yet the risk and frequency of disease processes increase with ongoing years The physical body's functioning and ability to restore all forms of damage and insult slow down the immune system becomes compromised and the slow growing pathologies reach their critical mass in the later years The psychological body also becomes weaker with unfulfilled promises and expectations and with tragedies that visit individuals and families and the prospect that whatever worlds remain to be conquered will most certainly not be met with success in the rapidly passing days and years that can only culminate in death Despair and depression coupled with infirmity and sensory and or motor inefficiency aggravate both the threshold and the tolerance for discomfort and synergistically collaborate to perpetuate a vicious cycle in which the one may mask the other Although the clinician is armed with the latest advances in medicine and pharmacology significant improvement continues to elude her or him The geriatric specialist all too familiar with such realities usually can offer little else than a hortative to learn to live with it but the powers and effectiveness of learning itself have declined Food United States. Klein, 2012-12-06 As is noted in the opening chapter of this volume nutrition and public health programs have been important throughout Latin America and the Caribbean for many years This is due to the special concerns of those responsible for setting national policies the program experience and leadership in public health developed by the national governments and the stimulus and cooperation of the Pan American Health Organization PAHO including its twelve associated centers which focus on research training and program development The need for a coordinated hemisphere wide attack on malnutrition and other health problems was expressed clearly in the Ten Year Health Plan for the Americas 1 This plan established specific targets for reducing the prevalence of the major nutritional diseases and other health problems for the decade 1971 1980 It was noted at that time that very few countries had formulated adequate comprehensive national food and nutrition policies and plans nor had they developed strategies for combating the nutritional deficiencies known to affect large numbers of people throughout the Region. Following a review of the available data on a country-by-country basis in 1975, the PARO Directing Council endorsed recommendations for formulating the necessary national policies and strategies for the intersectorial execution of food nutrition and health programs.² This report also summarized the available national data related to nutritional status, existing programs such as food fortification, and the human resources available for services as well as for research and education.
