In It for the Long Run Scott Ludwig, Vanessa Stroud, 2012-09 Multiple races of marathon distance or greater in a month or perhaps in a weekend Several unsupported runs of 50 and 100 miles through the mountains and forests several times a year Have you ever considered running through a desert across a frozen tundra or over multiple mountain ranges Why not run for three days straight to see how many miles you can accrue Welcome to a place where no locale is too inhospitable and no distance impossible Welcome to the Darkside The Darkside Running Club established in 2002 is a place where runners meet to express their love for distance running and camaraderie by spending countless hours and miles committed to doing what they enjoy most They share a singular focus towards achieving goals far off in the distance both literally and figuratively With their dedication and commitment you may believe the Darksider to be a professional athlete or perhaps an Olympian But you would be wrong they are simply ordinary people doing extraordinary things in the sport they love running Highly competitive while never taking themselves too seriously they strive to shave off minutes or perhaps hours while adding a mile or two or twenty while pushing their limits further and further The impossible becomes possible dreams become reality They won't take no for an answer as they persevere to move beyond physical and emotional discomfort to finish what they started Excuses don't exist Their passion is contagious So reader be warned they're in it for the long run

Arne Hallam,2016-11-02 Nutrition Economics Principles and Policy Applications establishes the core criteria for consideration as new policies and regulations are developed including application based principles that ensure practical effective implementation of policy From the economic contribution of nutrition on quality of life to the costs of malnutrition on society from both an individual and governmental level this book guides the reader through the factors that can determine the success or failure of a nutrition policy Written by an expert in policy development and incorporating an encompassing view of the factors that impact nutrition from an economic standpoint and their resulting effects this book is unique in its focus on guiding other professionals and those in advanced stages of study to important considerations for correct policy modeling and evaluation As creating policy without a comprehensive understanding of the relevant contributing factors that lead to failure is not an option this book provides a timely reference Connects the direct and indirect impacts of economic policy on nutritional status Provides practical insights into the analysis of nutrition policies and programs that will produce meaningful results Presents a hands on approach on how to apply economic theory to the design of nutritional policies and programs      The Russia-Ukraine conflict and global food security Glauber, Joseph W.,Laborde Debucquet, David,2023-07-10 When Russia invaded Ukraine in February 2022 sparking fears of a global food crisis IFPRI responded rapidly to the need for information and policy advice to address the crisis From the first moments of the conflict a new IFPRI blog series provided critical information and insights into the impacts on food security caused by rising food fertilizer and fuel prices and trade disruptions for vulnerable countries and regions This book is a compilation of those blog posts which include analysis of trade flows tracking of food prices and policy responses and results of impact modeling Together they provide an overview of how the crisis has progressed how the international community and individual countries responded with efforts to ensure food security and what we are learning about the best ways to ensure food security in the aftermath of a major shock to global food systems      Freedom from Want George Kent,2005-06-02 There is literally a world of difference between the statements Everyone should have adequate food and Everyone has the right to adequate food In George Kent s view the lofty rhetoric of the first statement will not be fulfilled until we take the second statement seriously Kent sees hunger as a deeply political problem Too many people do not have adequate control over local resources and cannot create the circumstances that would allow them to do meaningful productive work and provide for themselves The human right to an adequate livelihood including the human right to adequate food needs to be implemented worldwide in a systematic way Freedom from Want makes it clear that feeding people will not solve the problem of hunger for feeding programs can only be a short term treatment of a symptom not a cure The real solution lies in empowering the poor Governments in particular must ensure that their people face enabling conditions that allow citizens to provide for themselves In a wider sense Kent brings an understanding of human rights as a universal system applicable to all nations on a global scale If as Kent argues everyone has a human right to adequate food it follows that those who can empower the poor have a duty to see that right implemented and the obligation to be held morally and legally accountable for seeing that that right is realized for everyone everywhere various UN SDGs      Cost-Benefit Analysis of the African Risk Capacity Facility Daniel J. Clarke, Ruth Vargas Hill, 2013-11-01 Governments play a key role in supporting populations affected by natural disasters including rebuilding infrastructure to ensure continued services and scaling up public safety nets to prevent widespread hunger and poverty. However, the traditional approach of limiting greater spending to the aftermath of a disaster has many drawbacks. External support from bilateral or multilateral donors can be slow and unreliable. Private sector reinsurance can be prohibitively expensive. And reallocating budgets toward recovery and reconstruction is typically a slow process that can even hurt long term development by drawing resources away from effective programs. Some countries are trying to mitigate this liability by banding together and creating sovereign catastrophe risk pools that allow governments to coordinate with one another to insure their uncertain fiscal liabilities at lower cost. Countries contribute to the pool which then provides payments if an insured natural disaster strikes. The African Risk Capacity ARC has been proposed as a pan Africa drought risk pool to insure against drought risk in Africa south of the Sahara. If fully operationalized the ARC will mark a major change in how donors fund emergency support to countries in Africa during times of need. In this paper we undertake a cost benefit analysis of the ARC pool and discuss how lessons can inform the design of the ARC.      The Economic Rationale for Investing in Nutrition in Developing Countries Jere Richard Behrman, 1992      Handbook on Food Raghbendra Jha, Raghav Gaiha, Anil B. Deolalikar, 2014-01-01 This volume is a welcome and timely contribution to a topic of enduring importance. The global consequences of recent food price crises underscore the need to examine food security issues from diverse perspectives. This volume meets that need featuring accessible yet cutting edge analyses of food security by leading experts in fields as diverse as trade, nutrition, public health, production, political economy and behavioral economics. It will be of interest to a wide range of scholars and practitioners. Steven Block Tufts University US. This excellent volume offers a compact but wide ranging survey of recent research on important changes in global food markets. Its 20 chapters accurately capture important areas of scholarly agreement as well as on going debates among economists studying agriculture and nutrition with several provocative original contributions from other fields. The book draws particularly on the authors long experience in Asia offering widely applicable insights for scholars and policy analysts seeking to understand the past, present and future of food around the world. William A. Masters Tufts University US. The global population is forecasted to reach 9.4 billion by 2050 with much of this increase concentrated in developing regions and cities. Ensuring adequate food and nourishment to this large population is a pressing economic, moral and even security challenge and requires research and action from a multi disciplinary perspective. This book provides the first such integrated approach to tackling this problem by addressing the multiplicity of challenges posed by rising global population, diet diversification and urbanization in developing countries and climate change. It examines key topics such as the impact of prosperity on food demand, the role of international trade in addressing food insecurity, the challenge posed by greenhouse gas emissions from agriculture and land degradation, the implication on labor markets of severe under nutrition viability of small scale farms strategies to augment food availability
